HUSBAND KILLS BRIDE AND SELF; MOTIVE PUZZLE

Both Had Returned From Gay Party Earlier in Evening.

WOMAN IN TRAGEDY COMMERCE WORKER

Her Mate Believed to Have Been in Fight Prior to Slaying.

Ending a night of mixed bitterness and gayety, Frank O'Neal, 32, murdered his bride of six months as she slept peacefully early yesterday at their home, 1272 Owen place northeast, and then shot himself to death.

O'Neal's body was found slumped across that of his wife, Mrs. Grace O'Neal, who was a clerk in the Commerce Department. Her sister, Mrs. Georgia L. Wilson, discovered the tragedy after hearing the two shots.

Reconstructing events, homicide squad detectives learned the couple had attended a gay party earlier in the evening.

Fist Fight at Party.

Some time during the party O'Neal was believed to have engaged in a fist fight—the marks were apparent on his face. What the trouble was had not been learned last night.

They arrived home about 4 o'clock, other occupants of the house said. O'Neal later donned trousers over his underclothing and went downstairs. He was seen by a roomer, departing for work, and later was found prowling around the basement by Joseph Wilson, his brother-in-law, who was returning from work.

Wilson went to bed, however, and it was not until the tragedy was discovered that it was learned O'Neal was seeking and had found in the basement an old trunk containing a battered .38-caliber revolver. This was the instrument that ended the lives of both husband and wife.

Motive Is Puzzle.

They were pronounced dead by a Casualty Hospital physician summoned with police by Mrs. Wilson.

Members of the family said Mr. and Mrs. O'Neal had been on amiable terms as far as could be noticed and were at a loss to explain the motive for the murder and suicide. The only motive that could be ascribed was that something that transpired at the party had activated O'Neal.

Coroner A. Magruder Macdonald issued a certificate of murder and suicide.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the W. W. Chambers undertaking establishment. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Aguinaldo Assails Independence Bill

Filipino Veterans Adopt His Plea to Defer Stand on Measure.

Manila, P. I., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, who led the Philippine insurrection against the United States in 1899-1901, today attacked provisions of the Hawes-Cutting independence bill in a speech before the annual convention of Veterans of the Philippine Insurrection.

The convention, attended by about 4,000 delegates, adopted Aguinaldo's suggestion that the veterans refrain from taking a stand on the measure in its present form until the return from Washington of the Philippine independence mission.

Aguinaldo's address was his first expression on the independence act. It had been awaited by insular legislators with interest because of the standing of the insurrecto leader, who headed the Philippine revolutionary republic.

Javanese Mutineers Seize Dutch Cruiser

Take Arms and Ammunition Aboard Vessel, Overpower Officers and Set Out to Sea; Steamers Immediately Begin Chase.

The Hague, Feb. 5 (U.P.).—The Dutch cruiser "De Zeven Provincien" was reported in the hands of a mutinous crew of native Javanese today. The mutineers steamed out to sea from the port of Olehle, on the north coast of the Island of Sumatra.

An official dispatch from the Dutch governor said the mutinous crew seized arms and ammunition aboard the warship, overpowered the few officers on board and put to sea.

The cruiser was reported sighted at 8 p. m. tonight west of the town of Melaboe, apparently headed for Surabaya.

Dispatches reporting the mutiny said the commander of the cruiser, 7 officers, 10 European noncommissioned officers and 20 European marines were ashore at the time of the incident.

They boarded the government steamer Aldebaren, however, and put out in pursuit of the cruiser.

The bizarre chase through tropical seas aroused intense interest throughout Holland, as well as in foreign communities in Java, fearful of native uprising following recurrent incidents of mutiny among the native seamen used on board Dutch warships in their East Indian fleet.

The civil and military authorities were warned to be on the lookout for the cruiser, and also to take special precautions against any outbreaks in other ranks.

The Dutch squadron now maneuvering near the south coast of the Celebes was immediately ordered to Sumatra waters.

The mutiny followed a recent revolt of native enlisted men who refused to stand parade drill in the mornings as a protest against a 17 per cent cut in pay. Some 400 or more were ordered under arrest, and are awaiting court martial.

TWO MEN ARE HELD IN GIRL'S KIDNAPING

Brothers Jailed in Stafford After Child Is Found Lashed to Tree.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Feb. 5.—Charged with the abduction of Caroline Musante, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Musante, and identified by her as her assailants, Robert Payne, 30, and Theodore Payne, 27, brothers were lodged in jail at Stafford this afternoon by Deputy Sheriff John Bullock, who arrested them at their home in Falmouth.

The brothers answered the description of two men who abducted the girl as she waited for a school bus about 9 a. m. Thursday and held her captive in the woods securely bound to a tree until 9:30 p. m., when, shivering from cold, hungry and in a highly nervous state, her cries were heard by searchers who had been looking for her for hours.

She was found securely lashed to a tree in the thick woods about a mile from her home, but other than shock and exposure she suffered no ill effects from her experience.

Her abductors had forced the girl to accompany them under threats of being shot. After binding her they plied her with questions about the young children of H. P. Porter, relative and neighbor of the Musante family, who had recently been awarded $5,000 damages for the death of a young daughter in an automobile accident.

A plot to kidnap one of the Porter children and hold it for ransom was described in a poorly written note addressed to "U. S. Kidnaping Gang" and signed by "Harry" which was found in the yard of the Porter home several days earlier.

After questioning the girl for an hour the men, who went by the names of "Bill" and "Harry," left the girl with a warning that she would be killed if any outcry was made.

She remained tied to the tree until dark, when her abductors returned and again sought to learn facts about the Porter household. Caroline was again left in darkness, being warned to keep quiet. The suffering child could restrain herself no longer and screamed for help. Searchers heard her cries and rescued her.

Robert Payne, eldest of the accused brothers, is single. Theodore Payne is married and has two children. Both have been employed on road construction work which is in progress near the Musante and Porter homes. The brothers live with their widowed mother, Mrs. Sarah Payne, in Falmouth, where they have been located about one year.

A preliminary hearing is due to be given the accused at Stafford tomorrow.

Warmer, With Rain, Forecast for Today

With the remnants of Friday's snow icing the streets Washington was besieged by a penetrating cold yesterday as harsh weather enveloped the entire northeastern seacoast. The lowest temperature recorded last night was 19 degrees at 10 o'clock with the mercury falling.

A slowly rising temperature was predicted by the Government forecaster today. The weather will be clear during the day, followed by rain in the evening which will continue through tomorrow.

131 Are Saved as Ship Hits Rocks at Harbor

Porto Alegre, Brazil, Feb. 5 (A.P.). The Lloyd Nacional Coastal steamer Aracatuba struck rocks at the entrance of the Rio Grande Harbor today, but all 63 passengers and the crew of 68 were saved.

The ship was believed lost.

COL. HOUSE DISOWNS BULLITT ACTIVITIES

Spokesman Says He Doubts Traveler Would Claim to Represent Roosevelt.

New York, Feb. 5 (U.P.).—Richard Washburn Child, former United States Ambassador to Italy, said tonight after a conference with Col. E. M House that William Bullitt "does not represent Col. House in Europe to interpret his views, as has been suggested, on war debts, Russia and other foreign affairs."

"It is within my knowledge," said Mr. Child, "that Col. House was aware of Bullitt's trip abroad, which House, and I suppose President-elect Roosevelt, regarded as for the usual travel and recreation, and such word as an author and journalist may pick up abroad. No information has come which would lead Col. House to suppose Bullitt had been indiscreet enough to claim to speak for the President-elect or Col. House, or to claim any influence with or any assignments from the new administration.

"The extraordinary publicity given Mr. Bullitt, who is known to me, is probably nothing more than a new affliction to those who once held positions in government and later had become journalists."

Dispatches from Europe have said Bullitt is regarded as an agent there of the new administration, sounding out official opinion on debts and other matters. Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, has demanded in the Senate that Bullitt be prosecuted by the State Department for falsely representing himself as a diplomatic official, and President-elect Roosevelt

Death Foils Driver Who Got Job Here

Cabman Killed in Crash as He Takes Toys to His Two Children.

Philadelphia, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Driving from Washington, D. C., where he recently obtained a job as a cab driver, to visit his family in Atlantic City, Harry Bressler, 38, was killed today when his cab collided with a bus in Norwood, a suburb.

The cab, a crib and several toys which Bressler was taking to his two children, were demolished. The vehicle had been borrowed from his employer.

The bus driver, Lewis Pratt, of Somers Point, N. J., was held in $2,000 bail pending action of the coroner.

Baker, 28, Is Dead; Police Begin Probe

Autopsy to Be Performed; Whereabouts During Night Checked.

An investigation was being conducted last night into the apparent natural death of Conrad Vogler, 28-year-old German baker, yesterday morning at his lodgings at 1345 Irving street northwest.

While Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald could ascertain no suspicious circumstances after examining Vogler's body, it was determined that an autopsy must be performed to find the cause of death.

Meanwhile, homicide squad detectives were checking up on Vogler's whereabouts from 11 p. m. Saturday, until 5 a. m. yesterday. They found that he had not worked and that he had left the home of a young woman acquaintance at 11 o'clock. Occupants of the Irving street address heard him reach home at 5 o'clock.

SOVIET INSISTS THAT U.S. GIVE FULL EQUALITY

Roosevelt Told Moscow Will Not Brook Quiz on Stability.

WALSH'S SELECTION BODES EARLY ACTION

Russians Believe U. S. Seeks Relations Because of Far East Situation.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

President-elect Roosevelt has been informed by authoritative spokesmen for Soviet Russia that any move toward recognition of the Communist Government after he comes into office will have to be on a basis of immediate equality. In other words, the Moscow government will not renew diplomatic relations with the United States if this resumption of diplomatic intercourse is to be awarded only after an American mission has been sent to Russia to determine its political viability.

It is generally believed that the new administration will examine the question of renewing diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia soon after taking office. This resumption of diplomatic relations has been talked about ever since the Roosevelt victory last November, and it was believed that the first step toward recognition would be the sending of an American trade mission to Russia. Such a mission would be repugnant to the Soviet foreign office and the incoming President has been informed that recognition of the Moscow government on such a condition would be inacceptable.

Cabinet Choice Augury.

The tentative Cabinet slate as it has been reported tends to confirm the impression that President-elect Roosevelt will turn his attention to the renewal of Russian-American relations soon after the war debt problem has been disposed of and perhaps sooner. The presence of Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Democrat), of Montana, in the Cabinet is in itself an augury for the forthcoming move. Senator Walsh has been a leader in the fight for Russian recognition and it is not believed he will change these views after he enters the Cabinet.

The move for recognition will undoubtedly meet strong resistance in the country, particularly from religious organizations who are opposed to the Communist antireligious principles. "Religion is the opium of the masses" is one of the most quoted Soviet maxims and upon this watchword has been based a systematic

Orthodox Moslems Attack Muezzin Who Failed to Call In Arabic.

Istanbul, Turkey, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—A religious uprising which was considered almost tantamount to an insurrection today took President Mustapha Kemal Pasha to Broussa, where orthodox citizens attacked a muezzin (public crier) who in giving his call to prayer used Turkish instead of Arabic.

The president ordered the saying of prayers in Turkish instead of Arabic several months ago.

Drastic action by the government against the ringleaders of the movement, with the possibility that some might be hanged, was expected.

The president, who was making an economy inspection tour of the country, went to Broussa with Ismet Pasha, president of the council, and took personal charge of the situation. A number of priests, dispatches from the city said, have been arrested as a consequence of the disturbance and the mufti of Broussa was relieved of his post. The president and his advisers began an immediate inquiry into the trouble.

Many arrests were made, dispatches from Broussa said, before the arrival of President Kemal. The group which attacked the muezzin was said to have incited others to join the attack which then spread against government officials attempting to interfere.

On his arrival the president went into a conference with the governor and police officials to discuss measures to be taken against the religious manifestants.

The Turkish cabinet, meeting in special session at Angora, voted that the ministers of interior and justice should leave immediately to join the president at Broussa to attempt to suppress the movement.

Long Says Bank Crisis At New Orleans Over

New Orleans, Feb. 5 (U.P.).—Senator Huey P. Long announced to an anxious public tonight that the city was safely past its financial crisis.

He said the Government had pledged $25,000,000 to meet any emergency when banks are opened Monday morning, and that "there isn't a possibility of anybody losing a dime in any New Orleans bank."

VOTE IN SENATE ON U.S. PAY CUT POSSIBLE TODAY

Chamber May Act Also on 5 Per Cent Slash in All Appropriations.

NEW FIGHT TO SAVE JOBS NOW EXPECTED

Costigan First Will Push His Idea to Bar Lower Wage Under Bratton Plan.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The Senate today will come to grips with sweeping economy legislation, affecting every Government department and the personnel within those departments.

After battling its way through the first appropriation bill, the Treasury-Postoffice measure, the chamber is prepared this afternoon to go ahead with the Senate Economy Committee's far-reaching report, attached as a rider to the big supply bill.

The question of pay cuts, not only the proposed 1 2-3 per cent additional furlough slash, but the Bratton 5 per cent general appropriation reduction, affecting every Federal agency, is likely to be reached late today or tomorrow.

Memorial for Coolidge.

Under an agreement reached Saturday, senators today will return to work on the retrenchment legislation immediately following joint memorial exercises with the House for the late President Coolidge.

The first vote probably will be on the proposed extension for another year of the economy act provision suspending annual leave for Federal employes, as part of the continued furlough plan.

Before the direct 1 2-3 per cent additional pay cut is reached in the bill, senators have agreed to vote on the Bratton amendment, directing every department executive to make 5 per cent cuts in appropriations.

Costigan Amendment.

And before that vote is taken, Senator Costigan (Democrat), Colorado, will call up his amendment exempting employes in all departments from further wage cuts or furloughs, under the Bratton 5 per cent slash. Costigan holds the Bratton plan will force pay cuts up to 17½ per cent, if adopted without his amendment.

Both the Bratton proposal and the Costigan amendment already have been adopted for the Treasury and Postoffice departments, and the next vote will be on the issue of making them general throughout the Government service.

Some Senators hold the 1 2-3 per cent additional cut is almost certain to be defeated if the Bratton amendment is agreed to. It was probably with this in mind that Senator La-

Youth and Matron Die in Auto's Gas

Wife of Another Is Found Lifeless in His Arms; Pact Suspected.

Omaha, Nebr., Feb. 5 (U.P.).—The 19-year-old daughter of a prominent railroad man, married to a University of Iowa student, and the son of a labor newspaper editor were found dead today, clasped in each other's arms in an automobile filled with carbon monoxide gas.

The victims, believed to have entered into a suicide pact, were Mrs. Rosemary Wallen, daughter of Eugene McAuliffe, president of the coal mining division of the Union Pacific System, and Bernard Kinney, 20.

Mrs. Wallen was the wife of Eugene Wallen, but investigators said she and Kinney had been deeply in love. They left no note. A tube had been attached to the exhaust pipe of Kinney's closed automobile and run up through the floor board into the car.

COUNTERFEIT QUIZ RESULTS IN ARREST

Man Is Seized at Downtown Hotel With Two Women; Latter Released.

Kermit M. Brasher, 23, was arrested last night in the Annapolis Hotel and held for investigation in connection with a counterfeiting inquiry being conducted by the Secret Service and the Metropolitan Police Detective Bureau.

Two women taken into custody at the same time were questioned at headquarters by Detective Sergts. Jeremiah Flaherty and Richard J. Cox and Secret Service Agent John Q. Slye. They were released after brief questioning.

Brasher gave his address as 6826 Wisconsin avenue, but there is no such name listed at that address. A lookout for Brasher was broadcast by police a few days ago. The lookout said he was wanted for passing counterfeit bills of $10 denomination.

Secret Service Agent John S. Tucker, who is handling the investigation, said details of the arrest would be made public today.

Son of Magnate Quizzed in Death

Young Erskine Is Grilled After Girl Dies in Chicago Leap or Fall.

Chicago, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Albert Russell Erskine, jr., 24, adopted son of the president of the Studebaker Automobile Co., tonight was questioned by police investigating the death of Miss Vera Rayburn, unemployed stenographer, who leaped or fell to her death from the thirty-third floor of the Medinah Club Building on the fringe of the loop.

The girl's body was found today on the ledge of the twenty-fifth floor. Police said apparently she had fallen from a corridor window.

Young Erskine, employe of a Chicago advertising agency, told police the girl accompanied him and several others to a night club last night.

The last he saw her, he said was after giving her money for taxi fare to her home.

An elevator operator at the Medinah Club said the young woman appeared there about 3 a. m. today, stating she was going to the thirty-third floor to see Erskine, whose apartment is located there.

Boy, 3, Is Scalded By Water for Car

Runs Against Man Carrying Bucket; Is Rushed to Hospital.

Seriously scalded when drenched with a bucket of boiling water while visiting at Tyson's Cross Roads, Va., yesterday afternoon, 3-year-old Philip Vail, jr., of 4016 Thirteenth street northwest, was brought to Georgetown Hospital with burns to his face, neck and chest.

The youngster went to the Virginia town with his parents to attend a weekly gathering at the home of friends. A member of the party, after draining the water from his automobile radiator, was preparing to refill it just before leaving.

As he carried a bucket of steaming water to his machine parked outside, little Philip ran against him and the pail dropped to the floor. Its contents flowed over the boy's body. After first aid treatment, he was hurried to the hospital, where his condition was described last night as "improved."

CURTIS TO HEAD MILITANT DRIVE OF G.O.P. GROUP

National League Formed to Win Nation From Democrats.

EDUCATION PLANNED OF 8,000,000 YOUNG

Principles and Traditions of Party to Be Instilled in New Voters.

(Associated Press.)

A militant drive to reclaim the country from the Democratic party was announced last night with the formation of the National Republican League, headed by Vice President Curtis.

John A. Campbell, of White Plains, N. Y., who is to be national director of the organization, made the announcement.

Senator Felix Hebert, of Rhode Island; Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware, and former Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, are to be the vice chairmen.

"The purpose of the new organization," Campbell said in a statement, "is to reach the young people of the country and educate them in the principles and traditions of the Republican party."

Campbell said the organization was designed to "be one of the means by which they hope to win back the country to their party in the congressional elections of 1934 and the presidential election of 1936."

Headquarters Opened.

Announcement of the organization is the first public move by the party since the November elections to realign in preparation for the future.

Talk of a complete reorganization of the party machinery has been heard on Capitol Hill, with some Republican leaders urging the replacement of Everett Sanders as chairman of the national committee.

While conferences have gone on underneath the surface, there has been a general agreement to wait until after March 4 to chart a definite policy. Much depends, too, upon whether President Hoover is looking toward renomination in 1936.

Campbell said Eastern headquarters already have been opened for the organization in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, and that an office would be opened here soon.

8,000,000 New Voters.

Between now and 1936 approximately 8,000,000 young men and women will reach voting age, and to a very large degree the future of the Republican party will be in their hands," Campbell said. "Our object will be to furnish to this important group, and to the people as a whole, the information upon which they can form intelligent and sound opinions on national affairs.

"This movement is not in the interest of nor hostile to the candidacy of any person or persons for public office. It will cooperate with the national and local party organizations by bringing to the support of the Republican party the militant youth of America."

Campbell was connected with the Republican national committee in the Eastern headquarters in the last three Presidential campaigns and with the national congressional committee in 1926 and 1930.

Curtis' Statement.

In accepting the chairmanship of the organization, Vice President Curtis, who had given no indication of his plans after he leaves office next month, said:

"I have given considerable thought to the invitation that I become

Job Seekers Are Warned By Roosevelt Spokesmen

Advisory Staff Warns Pressure From Ambitious Democrats Will Be Ignored; Protests Filed Against Cabinet Places for Too Many Senators.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Warning was sounded today from the temporary Democratic headquarters here against campaigns by ambitious office holders for the high places in the new Roosevelt administration.

The cause for irritation was not revealed, but it was made emphatic by the party political chieftains who conferred yesterday with President-elect Roosevelt just before he sailed to sea, that the men to help run the next Government would be selected on merit and past party service rather than in response to any pressure from inspired campaigns.

Among the numerous words passed around in the gossip here was one to the effect that protests had been passed on to Mr. Roosevelt from some senators against the inclusion of too many senators in the Roosevelt Cabinet.

It was understood that one of the protestants was Senator Norris, of Nebraska, Republican Independent leader, who is known to hold the view that the Roosevelt strength in the Senate should be left untouched.

Among those regarded as likely Roosevelt Cabinet members are Senators Glass of Virginia, Walsh, of Montana, Hull of Tennessee and Cutting of New Mexico. The latter is a Republican Independent.

"Jim" Farley, the Democratic national chairman, is in command of the party base established at the Miami Biltmore at Coral Gables, while Mr. Roosevelt is on his ten days fishing cruise.

Mr. Roosevelt is understood to have decided upon most of his Cabinet. He is expected to reach final decision while resting at sea. These posts, however, have been definitely removed from the patronage counter presided over by the party workers here.

But the President-elect will be called upon to name several score assistant secretaries and thousands of other important officers of the Democratic government. He must have help on this and to Mr. Farley he has turned over this responsible task.

With Farley here are Edward J. Flynn, New York Bronx leader; Marvin H. McIntyre, a secretary to Roosevelt; Robert Gore, of Chicago; Archibald McNeil, national committeeman for Connecticut; Robert S Jackson, party secretary; Forbes Morgan, Eddie Dowling, Charles Hand and Colvin Brown, of New York; and Col. Arthur O'Brien, of Washington.

SENATE MAY PROBE BARRY STORY TRUTH

Demand Likely Today When Committee Deals With Sergeant at Arms.

(Associated Press.)

Demands for a full investigation to determine whether there are any congressional bribetakers may face the Senate Judiciary Committee when it meets today to recommend punishment for the Senate's magazine-writing sergeant at arms.

Several members of the committee have demanded investigation of the truth of the statement by David S. Barry, veteran sergeant at arms, in a current magazine article, that some members of Congress "sell their votes for money."

Barry, called before the Senate bar in a spectacular trial, last week, said he believed the story was true, but acknowledged he could not prove it. Some members of the committee now propose to ask the magazine publishers for proof.

To Be Settled Tomorrow.

The Barry case was referred to the Judiciary Committee by the Senate without instructions. But also pending is a proposal for libel proceedings which would force the magazine publishers to produce any evidence in their possession.

Barry, the 73-year-old official, is now under suspension, but the Senate has agreed to dispose of his case at 4 o'clock tomorrow, whether the judiciary committee reaches a decision or not.

Members of the committee predicted yesterday it would speedily reach an agreement today to recommend his outright removal.

Physical Test Arranged.

Meanwhile some members of the committee, inclined to sympathy toward the official with whom they have associated for years, are making arrangements for a physical examination of him before the case comes up in the Senate again tomorrow.

Barry, meanwhile, continued to maintain complete silence about his plans. Editors of the magazine announced they will confer with him tonight, presumably about further articles he has prepared for them.

West Virginia Coal Output Holds Gains

Weekly Total Is Slightly Off, but Far Ahead of 1931 Figures.

(Associated Press.)

The increased bituminous coal production in West Virginia noted since the first of the year continued during the week ended January 21, the weekly coal report of the United States Bureau of Mines shows.

Production for the week totaled 1,638,000 net tons, of which 1,336,000 tons were from the Southern coal fields and 300,000 from the northern West Virginia mines.

Although the week's total was 85,000 tons below production of the previous week, it was 29,000 tons greater than production for the corresponding week of 1931 and much higher than the low levels reported at the close of 1931.

Carnival Pirate Crew 'Attacks' Tampa Today

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—A merry crew of carnival pirates will sail into Tampa tomorrow for the silver anniversary celebration of Ye Mystic Krewe of Gasparilla, "attacking" the city from sea and air.

The naval training ship Taylor from Charleston, S. C., the Cuban gunboat Patria, a fleet of Coast Guard vessels from St. Petersburg and a squadron of Army airplanes from Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala., will participate in the invasion. The pirates, armed to the teeth, will appear at the south Florida fair tomorrow afternoon to demand the keys to the city, and, being refused, will proceed to capture it by force.

SENATE VOTE NEAR ON U. S. PAY SLASH

Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, Saturday persuaded senators to take the vote on the smaller cut last.

A new fight is expected to develop on the Costigan amendment, led by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, Senate economy chairman, who holds it actually will operate to force dismissals in departments directed to make the 5 per cent cut.

Senator Costigan, backed by the American Federation of Labor and numerous employes' organizations, denies this contention. They declare it will prove the employes' salvation.

Other economy issues that may come to a vote today or tomorrow include the Byrnes amendment, giving the incoming President almost autocratic reorganization powers, a provision extending Federal pay cuts to enlisted military personnel and a clause making veterans' pensions and payments under the War Risk insurance and the World War veterans' acts, over $1,000, subject to a 10 per cent slash.

Other issues around which lively debates are expected to develop include the plan to deprive the Civil Service Commission of its personnel records, leaving their maintenance to the various departments, and the proposal to abolish the Bureau of Efficiency.

By WALTER BROCKMANN.

Berlin, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—"Millions of followers united unto death"—that is the way Adolf Hitler described his National Socialist party in the manifesto which he issued upon assuming the chancellorship.

Every one, from Nazi to Communist, is being called upon to "die" for the cause and in election campaigns last year 65 did perish. There were more deaths in savage clashes which marked the Nazi celebrations of Hitler's rise to power.

Uniforms, drills, banners, mass reviews and even field maneuvers in which political storm troops practice attacks on the "enemy"—in this case fellow Germans of differing political faith—are on the programs of Communists, Socialists and Nationalists.

This "do or die" spirit has invaded the universities, been preached from pulpits.

Student opinion is being molded to fit the military uniform instead of academic broadcloth. When Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, in the debut of his short chancellorship warned in a broadcast against "overestimating the value of intellectualism" and then extolled military training for youth, he was repeating an oft-uttered sentiment of Hitler.

The trend on German campuses has been exhibited in political maulings, antisemitic riots and demonstrations against Jewish professors.

At the last annual meeting of the "studentenschaft" in Koenigsberg, Nationalist youths in full uniform dominated the gathering. They passed a resolution recommending reform of the student organization system along Fascist lines.

Out of the split in student ranks has come an "academic legion." It was formed by anti-Nazi students and is affiliated with the Reichsbanner, the uniformed rank of the Republicans' "iron front."

Down in Bavaria, where Roman Catholics and Protestants are in the proportion of 5 to 2, the Nazi criticisms of what they call the "internationalism" of the Roman church have been answered by organization of the "Bayern Wacht," or "Bavarian Guard."

In it Catholic youth is being disciplined and trained as a counterforce to Hitler's brown shirts. Originally intended to have a membership of 40,000, it is reported growing rapidly beyond that limit.

In Mecklenburg-Schwerin, where where the Hitlerites control the state government, one of the first acts of the legislature was to cancel the annual subsidy paid to the Catholic church. A similar Protestant payment was made.

In other districts it is a common Sunday sight to see squads of brown shirts marching to church under orders to attend services like troops of the old imperial army.

Clergymen who believe in Hitler laud him from their pulpits. One said: "Hitler embodies truth and life, thus he emulates the halo of the Saviour." Another: "The best kind of divine service these days is fighting for Adolf Hitler, whom God sent to save our country."

Controversy in literary and dramatic circles has been intense. The Nazis were especially virulent in opposing Erich Remarque's "All Quiet on the Western Front."

Many another play or book considered pacifistic or "international" in tone has been the target of the Hitlerites. Remarque and Emil Ludwig, authors, left their native land when Nazi criticism became too rabid for them.

Thomas Mann, winner of the Nobel prize for literature, is a determined antifascist and has been railed at accordingly. Gerhart Hauptmann, dramatist, has been described in Hitler's paper as "a sycophant applauded by almond-eyed Jewish audiences."

Dozens of other authors, both foreign and German, were on a "proscription list" published in Hitler's newspaper. The American representatives included Theodore Dreiser and Eugene O'Neill. In the British section was George Bernard Shaw, described as "the nihilistic blasphemer."

In the Prussian diet a Nazi motion was offered demanding exclusion of "non-German actors and antinational, pacifist and immoral plays."

Chancellor Adolf Hitler, idol of millions of Germans, to them embodies an intense nationalism that has extended beyond party lines, infusing the whole nation with a "do or die" spirit.

ILLINOIS IS ANXIOUS IN COAL UNION WAR

Governor Is Disappointed at Failure to Agree After Four Weeks Truce.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Uneasiness gripped the Illinois coal fields tonight on the eve of the termination of the truce between warring union factions.

Fears were expressed openly by county authorities in various sections that the end of the truce tomorrow would signalize new outbreaks of violence that has characterized the seven months-long controversy, and has taken at least five lives.

Efforts by Gov. Henry Horner to settle difficulties between the United Mine Workers Union and the newly organized Progressive Miners Union failed yesterday. For four weeks representatives of each union had been in conference here, listening to suggestions from their own members and from the governor.

Both Sides Stubborn.

The failure of the peace parley, the governor said, was due to reluctance of either side to make concessions. The governor expressed disappointment in a statement after the final conference last night and asserted that all the power of the State would be used to prevent further bloodshed. He promised, however, that peaceful picketing and the rights of peaceful assembly would be upheld.

Claude Pearcy, president of the Progressives, indicated that while no general order would be given to resume picketing, it was likely pickets again would invade operating fields.

Troops to Remain.

"Except in Christian County," Pearcy said, "all cessation of picketing since the beginning of the negotiations was voluntary and it is assumed that with the ending of negotiations, picketing will resume."

As to Christian County—storm center of the controversy—Gov. Horner was definite.

"Lieut. Col. Robert W. Davis, of the 130th Infantry, will continue in command of troops stationed in Christian County," he said, "and will be given additional men if he needs them."

Farm Parity Bill's Study Ends Today

Senate Group Will Begin at Once to Whip Measure Into Shape Desired.

The end of nearly a month of work on the big "farm parity" or "domestic allotment" bill was in sight last night for members of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Damming a flood of testimony for and against the measure, the committee fixed today as the absolute deadline for the public hearings. After that the members will begin immediately the task of whipping the bill into shape. Indications last night were that it would be rewritten drastically and reported to the Senate this week or the first part of next.

Since the bill was passed by the House on January 12, and referred to the Senate Agriculture Committee, that body has missed not a single working day in considering the measure, either in executive session or open hearings.

Income Taxes in Last Year Decreased by $583,418,371

Amount Received Totaled $784,617,096; New York Tops List; Virginia Is Third; Increase Shown in Only Four States.

(United Press.)

Income taxes paid by individuals and corporations in the calendar year 1932 totaled $784,617,096.01, compared with $1,368,035,467.15 in 1931, a decrease of $583,418,371.14, the Internal Revenue Bureau reported yesterday.

Individual earnings lumped during 1932 to a level which netted the Federal Government only $320,425,625.22 in income taxes, compared with $567,226,929.18 in the previous year.

Corporations also showed the effects of the depression and the decreased purchasing power of the American people and paid $464,191,470.79 in income taxes in 1932, compared with $800,808,537.97, a drop of $336,617,067.18 in 1931.

Miscellaneous taxes were the only source of internal revenue to register gains in 1932, due to imposition of the $1,118,000,000 revenue bill last June 6.

During 1932 miscellaneous taxes yielded $635,451,497.72, as against $546,019,155.44 in 1931.

Only four States, Arkansas, Kentucky, Louisiana and Nevada paid more total internal revenue taxes in 1932 than 1931.

Kentucky receipts showed the greatest increase, from $24,520,625.07 in 1931 to $45,670,088.39 in 1932, because of sharp gains in miscellaneous taxes, chiefly tobacco and cigarettes.

Collection of corporation income taxes were greater during 1932 in only Nevada, $1,192,978.15, compared with $679,740.56, and North Carolina, $8,986,769.66 and $8,825,348.43. The increase in Nevada was attributed to gold mining activities.

Individual income tax collections were smaller in every State. New York, as usual, paid the lion's share of individual income taxes, $105,626,239.25, or one-third of the total.

Total income tax receipts paid in 1932 show that New York led all other States, followed by Pennsylvania, Illinois, California and Michigan.

North Carolina was the leader for miscellaneous income taxes, paying $194,374,012.30.

All types of internal revenue taxes paid during 1932 show that New York led with $333,097,023.71, followed by North Carolina, $205,721,458.54, and Virginia, $99,106,599.79.

Maryland, including District of Columbia, $37,717,809.91, $27,687,843.89.
North Carolina, $251,819,908.33, $205,721,458.54.
Virginia, $107,115,468.44, $99,106,599.79.

SOVIET TO SEEK RECOGNITION BY U. S. ON EQUALITY BASIS

destruction of all religious feeling in the Russian people. The presence of Senator Walsh in the Cabinet, it is believed, would effectively controvert the opposition as it might be expressed by religious societies.

The Soviet feeling about American recognition is rapidly crystallizing into a belief that the United States is more anxious to have friendly relations with Moscow, in view of the development of Japanese influences in the Far East. In addition to that, however, Soviet spokesmen have declared with some asperity:

"A country like Russia that has endured for fifteen years in the face of such universal opposition as the Communist state has had to face from all the capitalistic nations needs no American Stanley to rediscover it. The United States is better informed about Russia at the present time than it has ever been. So, if diplomatic relations are to be resumed only as the price of another American mission to Soviet Russia, we prefer to go on as we are going."

There is, however, another undercurrent of Soviet interest which has not been emphasized as strongly as the desire of the Soviets for unconditional recognition. That is the fact that Japan has rejected the offer of a nonaggression pact with her and this rejection in the face of continued Japanese military activity in Manchuria and perilously near the outposts of the Soviet states of Asiatic Russia has inspired considerable anxiety in the Soviet foreign office.

Relations between the U. S. S. R. and China were resumed last December 12, when Maxim Litvinov, foreign commissar, exchanged notes with Dr. Yen, head of the Chinese delegation to the disarmament conference.

At present diplomatic relations between the Soviet state and its neighbors are on a friendly basis, due for the most part to the signing of nonaggression pacts with all of these countries except Japan and Roumania. Roumania will shortly resume negotiations to take up again the matter of the nonaggression pact, which failed of acceptance chiefly because of the Soviet intransigence toward Bessarabia, and this time it is believed the pact will be mutually acceptable.

However, the matter of the Soviet-Japanese pact of nonaggression is still far removed from consummation. Naturally, the Soviet diplomats are turning their eyes to the United States with especial interest at this time, and so the possibility of finally ceasing the nonrecognition diplomatic policy that has obtained here ever since the fall of the Kerensky government and the rise of Lenin may shortly be reached.

Vilna, Poland, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Three Polish white Russians today were sentenced to two and three year penitentiary terms for allegedly plotting to separate several parts of Poland and add them to Soviet Russia.

REICH MAYOR SLAIN BY FASCIST STUDENT

Violence Through Germany Increases as Hitler Makes Plans for Election.

Berlin, Feb. 5 (U.P.).—Recurrent violence in many parts of the country, more frequent since the dramatic elevation of Adolf Hitler, Fascist leader, to the head of the new government, caused growing concern among high authorities today.

At Stassfurt, Prussia, a Fascist student this evening shot and killed the Socialist mayor of the town, Hermann Kasten. An unidentified student lay in wait for him at the front entrance to his residence and shot him as he entered the house. The youth, after firing, made no effort to escape and was arrested.

The incident served to heighten feeling among Fascists, Socialists and Communists, the latter two being the most bitter enemies of the Hitlerite Fascist regime. Police took further precautions to maintain order during the present short election campaign, prior to the general Reichstag elections on March 5.

Clashes at Munich.

Two other deaths and scores of injured were reported in other Communist-Fascist clashes.

At Breslau, one member of the Reichbanner was killed and five seriously wounded in fighting with Fascists during a parade there.

Another was stabbed to death during a similar parade at Chemnitz.

At Munich, eight were severely wounded and taken to hospitals during clashes when 5,000 of Hitler's "Brown Shirts" held a demonstration opening the election campaign.

120,000 at Services.

In Berlin, despite a steady drizzle and a chilling wind, a throng estimated at 120,000 persons, including 50,000 of Hitler's "Brown Shirt" forces and police, stood for five hours at the semimilitary funeral services for the "storm troops" captain, Hans Malkowski, and Police Officer Joseph Zauritz, killed last Monday night, in Communist-Fascist fighting.

Chancellor Hitler and former Crown Prince Wilhelm were among the high government officials and party leaders who attended.

Hitler proceeded to Munich by airplane later in the afternoon on a quick trip to check up on his campaign in the south. He probably will be back tomorrow.

Fascist headquarters announced the chancellor would confer with managers of the campaign at the party headquarters in Munich. They also revealed that Hitler draws no salary as chancellor, having waived pay in view of his income from writing.

Before leaving, the chancellor made plans to issue tomorrow the first important edict of his new government, invoking a ruthless "gag rule" on the press, and curtailment of the right of free assembly.

Bostonian Drowns In Ireland Mishap

Ralph G. Crimmins Sinks to Death as Helpless Farmers Look On.

Cobh, Irish Free State, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Ralph G. Crimmins, a native of Boston, drowned near here today when the small boat in which he was en route to visit a friend capsized in a sudden squall.

Mr. Crimmins, who was 37 years old and a reputedly wealthy and ardent yachtsman, was overtaken by the storm as he neared the estate of R. R. Patterson, American vice consul, about 3 miles away.

He clung to the overturned vessel for some time and called for help to farmers on shore. No oars could be found for a boat which might have been used to rescue him and finally he had to let go. The body was recovered tonight.

Trio Back in Jail After Short Break

Citizen Feeds Three Boys and Persuades Them to Surrender.

Lockport, N. Y., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Three of five prisoners who escaped from the Niagara County Jail here last night gave themselves up at the jail here tonight.

They applied for food today at the home of John Hodges in Niagara Falls. Hodges fed them, heard their story, persuaded them to give themselves up, and drove them to jail in his auto.

The recaptured prisoners are Victor Loudzewicz, 19, of Niagara Falls, reputed leader of the break; Albert Lewis, 22, Niagara Falls, and Richard Mullens, 18, of Lockport. Still at large are Lloyd K. Doel, 19, and John Collier, 20, both of Niagara Falls.

Two Missing Canadian Fliers Are Found Dead

Winnipeg, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Two north country airmen, Pilot P. B. Calder, of Edmonton, and W. Madin, air engineer for the Canadian Airways, have been found dead and their plane wrecked, a report received by company officials here tonight said.

Unreported since January 31, after leaving the base at Fort Rae, in the far north Mackenzie River district, a searching plane found the wreckage of their machine and near it the bodies of the men, the report said.

Mollison Off for Brazil Today

Briton's Flying Wife Goes to Hop-Off Point in Kent to Bring Him Luck on Flight He Hopes to Make Inside of Four Days.

Lympne, Kent, England, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Capt. J. A. Mollison, noted long-distance flier, will start a flight to Brazil at dawn tomorrow.

He hopes to cover the 4,800 miles in three and a half days in his plane, The Heart's Content, in which he made the first solo westward crossing of the North Atlantic last August.

Amy Johnson, Capt. Mollison's wife, who also is a flier, said she was confident her husband would succeed.

"I think it is a flight that is really worth doing," she said. "I flew to Lympne with him in my machine because he brought me luck by flying with me to the airdrome before I left for Cape Town."

(The captain's wife was referring to her own flight to Cape Town, South Africa.)

Mollison said that he had no plans for a return flight and would make no decision concerning one until he had reached Brazil.

SENATE IS WARNED AGAINST PAY CUTS

Shaw Asserts Blind Economy May Prove Costly to U. S. in Long Run.

With the Senate scheduled to begin action today on proposals in connection with the Treasury-Post-office appropriation bill affecting the pay status of Government workers, President John Arthur Shaw, of the American Federation of Government Employes, last night issued a statement calling upon the Senate to "think twice before taking any step that will further imperil the efficiency of the Federal service." He said in part:

"Economy in Government can not be considered as a simple matter of bookkeeping. It is not such an arbitrary thing as that. The Government should not be extravagant. On that every one is in agreement, but arbitrary saving very easily can become extravagance.

"The Senate now has before it for consideration not only the continuation of the legislative furlough, which imposes an 8 1-3 per cent salary reduction, but an additional 4 2-3 per cent cut, as well as a proposed 5 per cent reduction of departmental appropriations. If all these are adopted, they will amount to 15 per cent, but again figures are deceptive.

"One senator who is opposing Federal wage cutting has made the point that the total reduction would exceed 17 per cent, to say nothing of the further losses in pay, following administrative furloughs or the wholesale dismissal of employes. Officials of postal organizations have called attention to the 5 per cent appropriation reduction amounting to more than 7 per cent, since, they point out, there are numerous fixed charges in the supply bill for that department, which can not be reached by a horizontal cut in its budget. This means that the alleged saving must be effected at the additional expense of employes' salaries."

Governors Island Fugitive Captured

Man Thought to Have Dived Into Bay Discovered in Officer's Home.

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The freedom gained by William Pussenberger when he escaped from the United States Army disciplinary barracks on Governors Island did not last long, the officer of the day announced today. He was found last night in the basement of one of the officer's homes.

Pussenberger, whose home is in Parsons, W. Va., was serving a term for "being absent without leave and other offenses, including breaking arrest.

When he escaped yesterday Brooklyn police patrolled the water front in the belief he might have tried to swim the Buttermilk Channel. A search of the encampment by 300 soldiers resulted in his discovery. The officer of the day said he would be court-martialed for his break for liberty.

CURTIS HEADS MOVE TO EDUCATE VOTERS

chairman of the National Republican League.

"It has long occurred to me that some such organization should be formed for the education of the youth of the country in the principles of the Republican party. The work to be undertaken by the league while partisan in its efforts still is fulfilling a patriotic duty in interesting the youth of the country in their Government.

"With approximately 2,000,000 young people coming of age each year the league will have an opportunity of bringing to the service of our party the younger element in American life which I feel is needed now.

"I, therefore, deem it a great honor to be called upon to become the leader in the movement and accept the chairmanship with full confidence that the league will be a valuable adjunct to our party."

Young Should Be Wanted.

Senator Hebert wrote Mr. Campbell as follows:

"I am pleased to agree to act in the capacity of a national vice chairman of the National Republican League soon to be organized.

"The Republican party has a great deal to offer to the youth of this country and the party should welcome the younger people into its active membership. They should share in its direction and in shaping its policies and they should, above all, feel that they are wanted.

"The National Republican League will be the proper channel through which the younger people in the country may become active members of the party. That the league will be permanent and sound is assured with the agreement of Vice President Curtis to be its head."

Former Representative Tilson wrote to Mr. Campbell as follows:

"Confirming my oral promise to you I am glad to state that it will be a pleasure for me to serve as a vice chairman of the National Republican League.

Sees Benefit to Party.

"During my six years as majority leader of the party in the House of Representatives I often wished that we might have a party organization, national in character and outlook, of the active young Republicans of the country which would consistently back up a constructive party program in Congress.

"Such an organization as the one proposed would be of incalculable benefit to the party in important election campaigns. During the last three presidential campaigns and the intervening congressional campaigns, I, as director of the speakers' bureau in the Eastern portion of the country, had ample opportunity to realize what an invaluable service might be rendered by such an organization in carrying on a vigorous campaign for the Republican ticket in every county and district of the country.

"It is fortunate that Vice President Curtis, who has been for so many years an outstanding member and worker of the party, has consented to act as head of such an organization. I believe that a worthwhile service will be the result not only from a party standpoint but from the standpoint of the best interests of the country, for, after all, ours is a Government by parties."

Dr. W. A. White's Book Is Recommended by Club

Washington Author, Director at St. Elizabeths, Presents Most Outstanding Scientific Work in His "Crimes and Criminals," Recently Published.

"Crimes and Criminals," by Dr. William A. White, published Saturday by Farrar & Rinehart, of New York, has been recommended by the Book of the Month Club and is regarded as one of the most outstanding scientific works to make its appearance recently.

In this book the Washington author, who has been nearly 30 years in charge of St. Elizabeths Hospital, has presented new and controversial material in a study of the antisocial mind, normal and abnormal. It is certain to attract wide attention among the students of human behavior.

Dr. White's theories, as outlined in this book, are the result of actual experiences recounted as case histories. He has had extensive experience on the witness stand in some of the most famous murder trials in the past quarter of a century. Among his professional duties at the moment, in addition to being head of St. Elizabeths Hospital, are as president of the International Committee on Mental Hygiene and professor of nervous and mental diseases, George Washington University and Naval Medical School.

In his introduction Dr. White declares that advances have been made in the medical sciences along the lines of psychiatry and especially in the understanding of human conduct.

Favorable signs of the present in this regard are, he claims, the wider prevalence of the employment of psychiatrists by the courts, the rise of the juvenile court, with its careful individual and social investigation of the youthful delinquent, the studies that have been made from time to time in prisons and the gradual entrance of the psychiatrist in the prison. "But with all these tendencies," continues the doctor, "one still feels more or less hopeless even to apply the knowledge that we already possess, because in almost all of these instances the psychiatrist who represents this knowledge is functioning as a part of an antiquated and worn-out machine which hampers his every move. The same things might be said of many careful criminological studies. * * * While here and there are indications of improvement and more adequate points of view, still the progress is distressingly slow."

Nowadays, the author reminds his hearers, the actor as an individual as well as the criminal act are considered by experts in criminology. He calls cannibalism, incest and murder still the three great crimes of humanity. Speaking of murder, the author declares that every one must agree that as a crime it is rife among us and it is impossible to predict that it will ever be otherwise. "Closely allied to and of the same nature as murder," he asserts, "is suicide. The difference between murder and suicide is a difference in the direction in which the aggressive tendencies are turned."

"Murderers are by no means necessarily dangerous criminals," is another advanced theory of the author. "It very frequently happens," he continues, "that the circumstances of the homicide are so unusual that it would hardly be possible for them ever to occur a second time. Under these circumstances, murderers may be very safe and reliable people for discharge into the community. Especially is this so if the crime and the subsequent punishment have exhausted all the requirements of the emotional situation."

In discussing the major emotions, Dr. White places the fundamental instinctive drives that move man to action into two great groups, the self-preservative tendencies and the race-preservative tendencies.

That the Old Testament principle of an "eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," behind even modern punishment for crime, still operates, is another claim of this great scientist in this book, and he adds rather sadly: "Anything in the way of prevention that is accomplished is incidental rather than fundamental."

The average criminal conduct contains one or more of the seven deadly sins as they have come down from the past, pride, covetuousness, lust, anger, gluttony, envy and sloth.

The chapter on "Capital Punishment" in Dr. White's book is very illuminating. That there is a gradual disinclination of courts and juries to impose the death penalty are among the observations. In this generation, at least, he finds that homicide is essentially a crime of youth. Dr. White affirms that capital punishment is really dying the natural death of increasing inefficiency. "Whether we wish it or not," he predicts, "capital punishment will be, before a great many years, a thing of the past," and his discussion of this much disputed theme is scholarly, scientifically sound and filled with valuable suggestions. In summing it up, Dr. White says bluntly that the death penalty is "just one of these remaining concessions to our brutal instinctive passions."

In his discussions of case histories Dr. White writes vividly and with a keen understanding of the human issues involved. There is no doubt but that this book will take a well merited place among his other books, which have proven to be of such real value in the realm of the study of human behavior. The layman, as well as the scientific worker, would do well to have this volume on his permanent book shelves.

Babson Denounces Payment of Bonus

Economist Thinks Action Would Hurt Business Instead of Help.

(Associated Press.)

Roger W. Babson, economist, said yesterday in a statement issued through the American Veterans Association, that payment now of the soldiers' bonus would harm, rather than benefit, business.

"Without doubt it is dangerous to talk in generalities about veteran aid," Babson said. "Doubtless there are many who are receiving aid who should, as well as there are a great many who are receiving aid unworthily. Statistics indicate to me, however, that the gross amount of veteran aid at the present time should be moderately cut. * * * There is no question as to the uneconomic claims made in behalf of paying the soldiers' bonus at this time. However people may differ as to the position of veteran aid, all thinking men should absolutely agree in their opposition to paying the soldiers' bonus at this time."

Babson said that payment of loans up to 50 per cent of the value of bonus certificates two years ago did not aid business, and that payment of the balance at this time would be "harmful."

HYDE PARK TALKERS SOUND REVOLT CALL

125,000 Jam Grounds at Demonstration of Reds, Unionists and Idle.

London, Feb. 5 (U.P.).—Bold shouts for "revolutionary action" and overthrow of "government by the capitalistic class" resounded from rostrums in Hyde Park this afternoon during a tremendous demonstration of Communists, trade unionists and unemployed.

The three groups, organized separately, combined during the afternoon of speech-making in Britain's traditional free speech park, and police estimated that no less than 125,000 persons packed the broad grounds and cheered their leaders.

The gatherings were good-natured, in the main, and 15,000 police stood by with little to do other than keep a watchful eye on the proceedings. They arrested one man and a woman during one scuffle, but for a huge throng the size of the crowd which packed Hyde Park the long-heralded demonstration was peaceful.

A light drizzle failed to keep the demonstrators indoors, and long before noon they had started filling up the park. Their leaders stressed their unity of action in denouncing the government, but it was apparent that a bitter struggle among the three groups was under way as to which would emerge as the banner-bearer of the unemployed, leading them out of their poverty.

W. A. L. Hannington, just out of jail, achieved a quick comeback during the day as a popular leader. He spoke twice from different platforms, and urged the workers and the unemployed alike to "organize for revolutionary action and overthrow government by the capitalistic class."

"Repression, imprisonment and persecution," Hannington shouted, "will not prevent us from forming the workers into battle lines and going forward to overthrow the national government."

A great cheer from thousands of throats went up as Hannington spoke.

The absence of disorder was attributed chiefly to the success of the Communists in compelling the organizers of the demonstration to permit their groups to participate and march behind their own banners.

WORLD QUEEN HONOR GREAT FUTURE ASSET

$10,500 Cash Prize Offered Is Only One Reason for Entering.

Equally as attractive as the $10,500 that will be distributed in cash awards is the international honor and recognition that will be conferred upon the 51 girls who are selected in The Washington Post's search for a Queen and her Court of Honor to officiate at the opening of the Century of Progress International Exposition in Chicago next June.

The girls will be selected from photographs submitted personally, or by friends or relatives, to the "Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post," during the period up to and including Saturday, April 15. Then, regardless of where they may live, they will be sent to Chicago for two weeks as the guests of The Washington Post and the Chicago Tribune. All transportation expenses to and from the exposition, together with residence at Chicago's most luxurious hotels, an elaborate program of entertainment and beautiful gowns, will be paid by these newspapers.

Three Large Awards.

Immediately preceding the dedication ceremonies three girls will be chosen from the group as queen and first and second ladies-in-waiting. To the queen will be awarded a cash prize of $5,000, while the other two girls will receive $3,000 and $2,000, respectively.

Every unmarried girl, excepting professionals like stage girls and artists' models and employes of The Washington Post, is eligible to compete and there are no entrance fees nor any other cost or obligation. The only requirements are that the candidate shall be unmarried and that photographs be at least 6 by 8 inches in size and taken within the last twelve months. To the back of each photograph should be attached either the transmittal coupon printed below or the same information upon a separate sheet of paper.

$5 Picture Prizes.

Because both the exposition itself and The Post's search for 51 charming girls are international in their significance, the girls selected will receive wrold-wide recognition and honor that unquestionably will be of tremendous advantage in the future.

Each Sunday during the competition The Washington Post will publish the pictures of ten contestants in its Sunday rotogravure section and to each girl represented will pay $5 in cash for the privilege of reproducing her picture. Checks are being mailed today to the ten young women whose pictures were published in yesterday's Post.

BAL BOHEME'S CAST READY FOR TONIGHT

Dress Rehearsal of Pageant at Arts Club's Event Is Held at Willard.

Attired in masquerade costume, more than 150 persons gathered at the Willard Hotel yesterday for the dress rehearsal of the pageant, "Castles in the Air," which will be the chief entertainment feature of the Bal Boheme tonight. A corps of artists under the direction of Frank Niepold and Hugo Inden will transform the Willard ballroom into a fairyland setting for this annual frolic of the Arts Club.

The ball will mark the culmination of weeks of preparation by various committees and is expected to add to the list of successful annual carnivals which for a decade have been outstanding events of each winter season in the Capital.

J. Milnor Dorey is chairman of this year's Bal Boheme, and Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest and Mrs. Maude Howell Smith are codirectors of the pageant. Mrs. Fulton Lewis, wife of the president of the Arts Club, has served as chairman of costumes, assisted by an efficient committee. Miss Marjorie Lowe is in charge of the cabaret performance, which will add to the interest of the supper hours in the small ballroom.

The ball proper will open at 10 o'clock and will continue into the early hours of tomorrow morning. One of the keenly awaited events of the evening will be the costume parade when those attending the ball pass in review before the judges for the selection of the most beautiful, the most original and the most amusing costumes.

The judges will be Don Cesareo Ferdinand de Quiros, Argentine painter, whose exhibition of pictures is current at the National Gallery; Frederick Murphy, noted architect, and Miss Fanny Sabastof, artist and niece of the sculptor, Bourdelle. Mrs. Luther M. Leisenring is chairman of judges and awards.

Striking figures in the pageant will be "Aurora, Goddess of the Dawn," impersonated by Ruth Harsha McKenzie; "Prosperity," Mrs. Eliphalet Fraser Andrews; "Success," Helen Goodhue; "Power," Leland Williams, and "The Eagle," Lisa Gardiner.

In keeping with the idea that the creative arts lift the soul of man up into "Castles in the Air," members of the Arts Club in various groups will represent literature, drama, painting, sculpture, music and architecture.

Eugene Colwell, 75, assistant financial clerk of the Senate for many years, died yesterday at the Washington Sanitarium, following a protracted illness from pneumonia. He was a close personal acquaintance of all senators of the past and present generation.

He was born at Penn Yan, N. Y., in 1858 and migrated via Iowa to Wyoming as a youth. He grew up in Cheyenne, Wyo., and went into the paper manufacturing business there. He was also in the banking business in Denver, Colo. He came to Washington in 1903 as a protege of the late Senator Warren, of Wyoming, and had been in the Senate disbursing office since then.

Among Washingtonians he was known as an enthusiast for the upper Potomac River between Washington and Little Falls. For years he maintained a camp on the river and in his high-powered motor boat he was known to all rivermen and canoeists as "The Chief."

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Genevieve Marion Farrar Colwell, Portner Apartments. Their fiftieth wedding anniversary was celebrated last July 4. He is survived also by seven children, all residents of Washington: Wilmont Clair Colwell, Eugene Raymond Colwell, Mrs. Helen Joy Allen, Wilmer Lynnwood Colwell, Herbert Ross Colwell, Mrs. Myrle Matter and Mrs. LaVerne L. ## Charleston Plans Legislative Speed

West Virginia Dry Action Among Major Issues Due for Ballot.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Powerful forces mobilized tonight for a vigorous drive against some of the Legislature's vexatious problems. If the leaders' plans mature, at least four major matters will be hauled out for some sort of action before the week is up. They will be property classification, school maintenance, election law changes and prohibition repeal, all potential subjects of sharp debate.

The Senate, which so far has failed to take any action on proposals to cut attaches and their salaries, may face the matter in a few days. Attaches expect a cut of some nature will be ordered.

The Democratic administration forces await the return from Washington of Dr. John F. Sly, field agent of the efficiency-economy committee, to whip up an enabling act for the new levy limitation amendment. They hope to blast a great hole in parliamentary machinery and pass the bill in a day or two, so that assessors can get busy finding out how much the State is worth under the amendment.

Macfarland High Girl, 11, Promoted to Ninth Grade

Sarah Ann Rapp Brilliant Student; Plays Piano and Writes Verses.

Although only 11 years old, Sarah Ann Rapp, pupil at Macfarland Junior High School, last week was promoted to the ninth grade, having completed a full grade the first semester. As a result she is now about two grades ahead of the usual pupil for her age.

Despite her scholastic accomplishments, she is merely unusually brilliant and industrious, and not of the child prodigy type, her teachers declare. Her advancement has been solely on her own efforts. She never has been tutored or given help in her school work at home.

She also has artistic abilities, plays the piano well, and has an aptitude at verse-making.

She is small for her age, but not enough for it to be particularly noticeable. She wears glasses when reading and studying, which gives her a thoroughly studious appearance, but when she removes her glasses and lays aside her work, she is a carefree and jolly child, ready for frolic and fun. She is a member of the Girl Scouts, and enjoys outdoor activities.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Rapp, of 727 Quebec place northwest, she is the eldest of five children, three of whom are boys. Mr. Rapp is an organist and pianist, well known in musical circles. He is director of music of the First Baptist Church, and is connected with a downtown department store in a merchandizing capacity.

SARAH ANN RAPP.

18 BANDS ACCEPTED TO PARADE MARCH 4

Delegation of Film Stars to Include Bebe Daniels and Cagney.

Eighteen bands and an equal number of organizations already have been accepted for the third and fourth divisions of the Roosevelt inaugural parade, according to announcement made yesterday by Col. E. M. Watson, chairman of the inaugural parade committee. The committee will continue to pass on applications for representation in the line of march between now and February 18, the last day on which consideration will be given to any organizations desiring to take part.

The places now being awarded are entirely in the third and fourth divisions, since the other two are automatically limited. The first division will consist of the regular establishments of the three military services and affiliated uniformed bodies such as the National Guard, R. O. T. C. and C. N. T. C. The second division is to be made up entirely of State governors and other distinguished guests.

Movie Stars Coming.

In addition to the marching or riding units, the fourth division will include a good many auxiliary features. One which has been awarded a definite place is a special float, on which leading motion picture stars will ride. According to word received from J. L. Warner, the movie delegation will reach here the morning of March 3 as a "Better Times" expedition. Among the celebrities will be James Cagney, Bebe Daniels, Joan Blondell, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Loretta Young. These screen stars are coming as the result of an invitation to attend the inauguration extended to the motion picture industry by Gov. Roosevelt during his campaign visit to Los Angeles last fall.

Another special feature of the parade will be Toby Cook, age 7, of Chula, Ga., who will ride a pony from his home to Washington in order to take part. Toby made a trip of 250 miles last fall to be present at Gov. Roosevelt's campaign address in Atlanta. He plans to leave his home about the middle of February and cover about 75 miles a day. He will be the guest of Senator Richard B. Russell, jr., of Georgia, while in Washington and has been promised that he will be allowed to ride his pony in the parade.

Those Already Placed.

The bands and other organizations which have been placed in the parade are: American Club Ringgold Band, Reading, Pa.; Boy Scout Troop No. 55, Atlanta, Ga; Coe College Military Band, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Jefferson Boys Band, Mobile, Ala; Loew's Fox Band, Washington; Massanutten Academy Band, Woodstock, Va.; Philadelphia Harmonica Band, Philadelphia, Pa.; Veterans of Foreign Wars, Washington; Richmond Blues, Richmond, Va.; Atlanta Technical High School Band, Atlanta, Ga.; John O'Donnell Marching Club, Philadelphia, Pa.; Morning Star Lodge, I. ## 2 Children of Army Officer Drown in Pool

Highland Falls, N. Y., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Two children of Lieut. Godwin Ordway, jr., drowned in a small pool on the Herbert L. Satterlee estate today.

Both the father, a West Point instructor, and a group of men who worked for two hours in an attempt to revive the children, believed that the 7-year-old boy, Albert, slipped in the snow and fell into the pool first and that his 4-year-old sister, Margaret, jumped in in an effort to help him.

UNITY OF RELIGION IS HELD POSSIBLE

Dr. Ignatius Smith Asserts Modern Tendency Is to Combine Faiths.

The hope of religious unity is not a delusion, declared the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith yesterday in the sixth of his series of nine sermons on "Christ and the Delusions of 1933," on the Washington Catholic Radio Hour. The sermon was broadcast from the Church of the Immaculate Conception. The Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor, presided. The music, under the direction of Harry Wheaton Howard, included Florence Yocum, soprano; Ann Arlen, violinist, and the boys' sanctuary choir.

The novena to Our Lady of Lourdes takes place daily at the church at 12:15 and 7:45 p. m., with the Rev. George Strohaver, of Georgetown University, as preacher.

In his discourse, Father Smith said in part:

"It can be seen that ultimate union of non-Catholic bodies is confronted by many personal prejudies and other man-made difficulties. It must also hurdle barricades erected by communicants who take God seriously. It is the hope of the supernatural help of God in ironing out these difficulties that arrests one from pronouncing that the hope of such religious unity is a delusion.

"The conferences held at Malines, under the direction of Cardinal Mercier, proved that the difficulties between the Roman Catholic Church and the Anglican Church are not insurmountable. The constant negotiations between Rome and Eastern Churches impress upon one the possibility of the reunion of the Roman Catholic with the Greek Orthodox Churches."

"Among the non-Catholic Christian bodies magnificent results have issued from their efforts at union. Great organizations and conferences for this purpose have risen, among which are the Lambeth Conference, the Lausanne Conference for the Reunion of Christian Churches, and others. Definite results have been obtained in Scotland, in Canada, where Congregationalists, Presbyterians and Methodists have united to form the United Church of Canada. A world Federation of Lutherans amasses 80,000,000 within its organization; a union of Anglican and nonconformist churches has reduced the number of denominations and there are signs of a union of Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians that would reduce more than 72 denominations to 3. These are by no means the ultimate results that have been made or in the negotiations that are being carried on. Great progress has been made at least superficially in wiping out the 'Scandal of Christianity.'"

Roosevelt's Acceptance Speech Has Vanished

Miami, Fla., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Friends of President-elect Roosevelt have been put on the trail of the missing original manuscript of the Roosevelt speech of acceptance delivered before the Chicago Democratic national convention.

Robert S. Jackson, national secretary, disclosed today that Mr. Roosevelt has been unable to locate the original copy which he prepared in great measure while flying to the convention from Albany, Jackson and Edwin A. Halsey, of Virginia, the sergeant at arms of the convention, are looking for the copy. There are no clews.

Roland Mitchell Dies; Was Former Delegate

Beer Bill Passage Called Wet Revolt

People Turning Against Repeal, Methodist Board Says.

(Associated Press.)

The passage by the House and approval by two Senate committees of the Collier-Blaine beer bill was described last night by the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in a statement as a "wet rebellion" against the Constitution.

The statement, signed by Bishop James Cannon, jr., as chairman, and Dr. Eugene L. Crawford, secretary, said these three congressional groups have "gone on record officially as a band of lawless lawmakers, in open rebellion against the Constitution."

The statement also said:

"From a careful survey conducted by our board, it now seems evident that the eighteenth amendment will not be repealed at an early date, and probably not at all, as the people are becoming thoroughly aroused as to the dire social results of such action."

THREE FAIL TO CLAIM CARS AT AUTO SHOW

Only Five Appear at Closing for Awards; 42,000 Total Attendance.

A big surprise in the form of three free automobiles is awaiting three Washington residents at the headquarters of the Washington Automotive Trade Association. The cars were ready for their new owners last night at the closing of the thirteenth annual automobile show at the Washington Auditorium. They went unclaimed, however, and the only possible explanation is that their owners do not know they own them.

Five of the eight cars given away in connection with the show were claimed last night in the climactic moment of the nine days' program. It came in the form of the award of title to the automobiles just an hour before the display closed.

Woman Awarded Car.

One woman was among those who shared the best fortune for having attended the show. She is Mrs. Alice B. Adams, 3736 Connecticut avenue. The car she was awarded is a Pontiac. The four men who were luckiest among the visitors to the show, together with the cars they were awarded, are:

A. M. Gulick, 136 Sixth street northeast; Essex.

R. V. Pitt, 4320 Argyle Terrace; Plymouth.

E. F. Mueller, 3914 Huntington street; Dodge.

John Easter, 2430 Irving street; DeSoto.

The unclaimed cars are a Chevrolet, Rockne and Nash. They were awarded Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights. Those who hold the coupons will be required to get in touch with the Washington Automotive Trade Association, sponsor of the automobile show.

Radio Round-Up Feature.

The combination of a special entertainment program in the form of a radio round-up featuring local stars and the awards of the new cars was more than adequate to the task of overcoming last night's cold weather so far as the show crowd was concerned. One of the largest turn-outs of the nine days was recorded during the evening.

With final records remaining to be checked, Manager R. J. Murphy, last night estimated the total attendance at this year's display at 42,000. It is possible that a final check-up will reveal that figure to have been exceeded, in which case the attendance record will run slightly ahead of that for last year.

Food Show Opens To Public Saturday

Elaborate Program Is Arranged for Event at Auditorium.

With the conclusion of the automobile show in the Washington Auditorium last night, preparations will get under way immediately for the second annual United Food Stores Exposition there, beginning Saturday night and continuing all next week.

Designed essentially as a constructive and educational movement, the food exposition will be featured by many exhibits intended to acquaint housewives and other visitors with the processes of food manufacture and handling. Demonstrations and talks on food questions will be given each day of the show by authorities in domestic fields.

The District Commissioners, other officials and leading citizens will be invited as guests at the opening night entertainment. Contests for old and young will take place each day of the exhibition, with a baby contest holding the spotlight at afternoon sessions, beginning Monday. A 1933 automobile, several electric refrigerators, radios and other electrical appliances are in the list of awards in addition to hundreds of baskets of foodstuffs and free samples.

COL. HOUSE DISOWNS BULLITT'S ACTIVITIES

has said Bullitt is not authorized to speak for him.

(Associated Press.)

The Government has been asked to investigate—and prosecute if warranted—William C. Bullitt, who has been reported as negotiating with foreign powers on war debts, under a law that is almost as old as the Nation, but under which there has never been a prosecution.

At the instance of Senator Robinson (Republican), Indiana, the State Department has asked American ambassadors in London, Berlin, and Paris to find out what Bullitt said about debts to Ramsay MacDonald and officials of the other governments.

They are seeking information as to whether he represented himself as an authorized spokesman of this Government or the incoming administration. Both the State Department and President-elect Roosevelt have disavowed sending him abroad.

Upon the reports from abroad depend the action to be taken toward possible prosecution of Bullitt under the Logan act.

This ancient statute, inspired by President Washington and passed by Congress toward the close of the eighteenth century to quiet meddlers in Europe, provides that unauthorized agents who negotiate with a foreign government on a question in dispute between that country and the United States may be fined $3,000 and sent to jail for three years.

Although there never has been a prosecution under the act, it has been invoked a number of times to silence Americans who were active in foreign disputes in which the United States was interested.

Bullitt is a Philadelphian, 42 years old, Yale graduate, former Washington newspaperman, former film editor and former State Department employe.

Missionary to Speak.

Robert Merry, a returned missionary and teacher from Iolanthi School, Honolulu, Hawaii, will speak at a service in Grace Episcopal Church parish hall, Alexandria, at 8:15 p. m. today, after which an informal reception will be held by the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of the church. The auxiliary will hold a business meeting at 7:30 o'clock.

W. C. T. U. Meets Tnight.

The Allison W. C. T. U. will hold a meeting at 8 p. m. today at the home of the secretary, Mrs. Alice Strauss, 310 South Washington street, Alexandria.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

THE time's not far off when you'll eat a lot of your foods from grass green parchment containers—and like it—better for its freshness and crispness.

It has been determined by Mayne R. Coe, chemistry and soils, Agriculture, that oily foods, peanuts, butter, oleomargarine, lard, even cookies, crackers, cornmeal, potato chips, pecans, mayonnaise, salad oil and many other foods and ingredients become rancid rapidly under light.

But, Mr. Coe learned, if the rays are softened under the grass green containers, rancidity is postponed, possibly indefinitely, and the foods will go the route from packer to consumer's appetite, wholesome and dainty and with that freshness you like to taste.

On a Government building roof here, there are placed, to catch as much sunlight as possible, 20 or more glass flasks containing the oily samples. They were put there at the same time several weeks ago. Two flasks contain butter, two contain lard, two contain nuts, two contain potato chips, and so on. Food in one flask is rancid. Food in the other is not. Explanation, the flasks are not the same color. One is clear like window glass. The other green. Green, by absorbing or deflecting all other colors of the rainbow, allows only green light to shine on the material in the flask and thereby delays the development of rancidity in oil-bearing foods.

THIS discovery has innumerable industrial applications. Mr. Coe made the discovery he was looking for. He observed, and partly explained, certain long-suspected relationships between light and decomposition. Other investigators had noticed similar relationships, without realizing their general significance. Had they chosen to investigate more critically the action of light they might have beaten Mr. Coe to the Patent Office, which recently granted him a public service patent on his discovery.

It has been known a long time that light causes certain things to spoil. Chocolate is wrapped in tinfoil to shun light. Other products are in tin cans, brown or amber bottles, and dark storerooms. Sunlight affects milk and medicines. It hastens photochemical decomposition of silk. It causes rubber to deteriorate. Tire makers put red or black pigment in tires to keep out certain light rays. Pharmacists long have been aware that certain drugs keep best in glass colored to shut out rays from the parts of the spectrum near the ultraviolet bands. In several cases these rays hasten decomposition.

THIS knowledge, however, was too vague for general use. Broadly, the only practicable way to prevent decomposition through action of light was to exclude all light from spoilable products. That can be done by putting them in black. But black has decided commercial disadvantages. Besides being a depressing color, it is too concealing, particularly for bottled goods. Pharmacists tried other colors; but they worked largely by guess. For a time they set much store upon amber-colored glass. In 1926, however, a committee of the American Pharmaceutical Association reported that the value of amber glass as protection for pharmaceuticals had been taken too much for granted. It recommended scientific study of other colors.

Not every green, however, exercises protective influence. It must be a true or a luxuriant grass green. Yellowish green or bluish green does not work.

AFTER demonstrating that green and black are protective, the investigator checked the discovery by working from the opposite direction. He ascertained the effect of each wave-length and found that none of the other colors was protective. Smithsonian Institution helped him with a special instrument called a monochrometer, which isolates different colored light bands in the spectrum. Beginning with the ultraviolet end, Mr. Coe found that ultraviolet rays strongly enchance appearance of rancidity in oil-bearing foods. He obtained the same result to lesser degree with indigo and with blue, and with yellow, orange and red. Green did not show any development of rancidity.

Top: C. E. Gapen, press relation director, Agriculture, inspecting the mass of letters and numbers of periodicals received on Mayne R. Coe's grass green discovery. Trade journals carried stories on the new knowledge and the letters from manufacturers have followed quickly, eagerly wanting more facts. Lower: Mr. Coe is shown with his containers, examining results in various stages of his experiments.

RITCHIE SEEN LOSING GRIP IN LEGISLATURE

Governor Becomes Sponsor of Opposition Measure; Budget Questioned.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 5.—Due to last week's radical change in the legislative situation, most Annapolis observers found themselves busy this week-end answering questions of "people back home" who want to know if Gov. Albert C. Ritchie has lost his grip on the legislature.

Events of the last week have given reason for the question. Gov. Ritchie took up and sponsored one of the measures proposed by the opposition, and is reconsidering one of his revenue proposals in the light of the attacks it has aroused. Furthermore, certain senators are considering measures which will cut deeply into the school appropriations recommended by the governor. Still further, his budget is being critically questioned by both houses.

The legislative sky is thick with clouds, but it is totally lacking in straws showing which way the wind blows. There has not been the semblance of a test vote on any of the more controversial matters. Only one of the controversial bills has even been introduced, except for the budget, and a vote on this sole bill is still far in the future.

Road Bill in Senate.

The measure is the County Commissioners' Association road bill, which has gone to committee. It will probably not be reported out until after the administration road bill is introduced. The first test vote will probably come on the adoption of the committee report on this bill.

The most definite change in the Annapolis line-up is in the gas tax diversion to Baltimore City. At the beginning of the session, Gov. Ritchie proposed that Baltimore be given 30 per cent of the 2-cent gas maintenance tax, instead of the 20 per cent it now receives. Another part of this proposal provides that the counties' share of the money shall be spent by the State Roads Commission.

The County Commissioners' Association wants this money to be turned over to the counties without any strings. To enlist the aid of the Baltimore city delegation (36 in the House out of 118), the association proposed to give Baltimore 30 per cent of all 4 cents of the gas tax.

Tax Division Sponsored.

Last week the governor countered by espousing this division of the tax yield. He explained that he had favored giving more to Baltimore, but had not proposed it earlier because he thought the counties wanted the money. If they want to give Baltimore the money, he "is with them on that point because 30 per cent is what I have always though Baltimore ought to have."

There is no doubt that the first proposal of the association won some support in the city delegation. The commissioners themselves claimed they had won 20 votes. How many of these—the city delegation is all Democratic—will swing back with the administration now that Ritchie has agreed to increase Baltimore's share is unknown. It is also unknown how many favored the commissioners' proposal in the first place.

Even with 20 of the city delegation for the commissioners' bill, the road is still not open for its passage. In the house, where the commissioners' claim the greatest support, 74 votes are a majority. Twenty of the city delegates, added to the House Republicans group of 27, only gives 47 votes for the bill. This means that the commissioners must find 27 other Democrats who will desert the administration to give the money to the counties without strings.

Most Important Event.

The most important event of the legislative week was a statement by the governor that he was "studying" the sales tax plan, although he dismissed it in half a sentence in his message on the opening of the Legislature. His statement followed a proposal in the Senate finance committee that a general sales tax be substituted for the luxury tax put forward by the governor.

The luxury tax has been attacked ardently by representatives of industries which will be affected by it, particularly the southern Maryland tobacco growers. The growers have at least six out of 29 senators, and about 19 votes in the House. In addition to this opposition, the soft-drink manufacturers have launched their campaign against the tax, and the chewing gum manufacturers, who are also affected, may be expected to protest heartily.

For these reasons, and because the luxury tax is not expected to bring in enough money to finance a revised relief plan for Baltimore city, it gained immediate and strong support in both Houses. Gov. Ritchie has promised to make a further tax recommendation to the Legislature shortly. If he comes out in favor of the sales tax, its passage is certain.

Tax Plan Revival.

The revival of the sales tax plan is further proof that the Legislature has a mind of its own. Gov. Ritchie's original comment on the tax was "I do not believe the people of Maryland want either a State income tax or a general sales tax." But he is now studying "particularly" the sales tax as well as the luxury tax.

The more important school appropriation cuts which have been discussed, call for abolition of the teachers' retirement system, saving about $1,000,000 per year; closing of some or all of the State normal schools, saving from $45,000 to $500,000, depending on which are closed; and abolition of State-paid truant officers and supervisors. None of these were administration measures.

The governor is almost certain to work against the retirement system change. It would increase Baltimore city's tax rate about 5 cents, unless the city were to do away with its own system, and Gov. Ritchie is most particularly anxious to cut the city's taxes. A cut in normal schools has a greater chance of passage, but there is no reason to believe that the administration would like to have the truant officers and supervisors cut out. The system is largely responsible for the State's high rating both in its school system and in its attendance average.

House Shows Independence.

While the Senate is flocking to the sales tax, the House is showing its independence in questioning the State police budget. Gov. Ritchie recommended an increase of $80,000 for 25 additional policeman, but the delegates are questioning closely the need for these extra men. Other police expenditures, for travel and for officers' chauffeurs, also are being examined.

This list of changes is all on one side. To offset it, there are other developments of the week. The senators demanding deepest cuts have announced on the floor that there is no breach between them and the governor. They have defended him and his budget and have complained bitterly about being called "insurgents" and "recalcitrants." The governor has said definitely that he is in favor of "any further reductions in the State budget which, after investigation and study, are found to be necessary or justified."

Further, and most significant, there has been no criticism of the governor on or off the floor of either house, except the usual fulminations of the Republicans. The governor is not under attack by his own party, but the fate of his budget and tax program is unknown.

Chicago Tax Case Decision Expected

Supreme Court Is Likely to Settle Great Problem at Session Today.

(Associated Press.)

Chicago probably will learn today whether the Supreme Court will delve into its tax problems.

Returning from a two weeks' recess, the court is expected to announce whether it will review two cases attacking the validity of the tax imposed by Cook County on real estate on the ground personal property was not bearing its fair share of the tax burden. The controversy has tied up the collection of taxes in Chicago for several years.

A number of decisions will be handed down by the court in 37 cases in hand for solution. The session today will be short, as the court will attend the Coolidge memorial ceremonies in the House of Representatives before meeting.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man found as a child in the African jungle by a lioness and raised with her own cubs, is brought to Canada by Martin Sefton. Here he is recognized by James Horton, wealthy Canadian publisher, as the grandson of Denison Starke, millionaire realtor now dead. The sole heir to a $4,000,000 fortune, Kaspa is introduced to Denison Starke's sister, Mrs. Johnson Marley, her two step-children, Lucian and Sheila, Sheila's family, Harland Reeves and Mrs. Marley's beautiful companion, Madeline Moore. Madeline is strangely drawn to the lion-man and her interest is reciprocated. At a house party arranged to bring Kaspa in closer contact with society, the guests trooped off to dress for a tennis match and Madeline, alleging a headache, remained behind to talk with Kaspa.

CHAPTER XVI.

"WELL, do you still want to go back to Africa?" she asked when they were alone.

"Yes, very much," said Kaspa. He was pleased that the chatterers had departed and left him to talk to the dark girl who was so good to look at.

"In what does the fascination lie? I thought it was a hot, uncomfortable place, until I read books about it. I know now that parts of it must be splendid, but I don't think I should like to live there with ticks, and ants, and those horrible droughts."

Kaspa smiled. "Droughts are bad," he said. Without thinking, he began to tell her of the great drought on the Nyoka, when the game all trekked, and lions and hyenas roamed in starving packs over the veld. Something of his longing for his country and the life of the lions infused fire and pathos into his narrative, so that his paucity of words proved no obstacle to the realism of his tale. He told of Ruka and Dogo, of Mala and Zite, and their struggles for existence in the great famine. At last Madeline attained the desire that had long been latent in her mind; she looked at life through the eyes of a wild lion, an experience which, she realized, no other woman had ever enjoyed. She was made to see the shivering Bomogo crouched over their fires, listening to the grunting of the lean, famished beasts prowling outside the huts. The wailing cry of the hyena sounded in her ears, and the fierce snarls of lions fighting for their lives against hunger-maddened scavengers.

Through those scenes stalked Kaspa, not the shy, awkward figure she had known, but a wild, magnificent person, the friend of the night and the king of the lions. She saw him, fierce, quick and cunning, stealing the Bomogo oxen from the manyatta. Before her dazzled eyes he stood, majestic and terrible, warning the interlopers from his kill, ready with knife and muscle to grapple in savage combat with the great tawny-maned lions of the plains.

Kaspa talked on and on, his voice broken by soft, slurring purrs and wrathful rumblings when human speech was difficult to him, and the girl leaned forward listening, her eyes intent upon those strange hazel orbs, in which a yellow glare came and went like summer lightning.

Sheila broke the spell of that story. "Who on earth is making those dreadful noises?" she said, standing in the doorway, swinging her tennis racket. Her amused glance traveled over them. "Was it Othello?" she asked, bubbling with laughter. Madeline did not reply. She rose and walked down onto the lawn, her mind still bemused with the strange things she had heard.

Sefton had also been a spectator of that scene. His heart was like lead within him. She was so beautiful, so true and desirable as mate and comrade, and she had never looked at him with that light in her eyes.

"Come on, you tennis fiends," said Sheila. "Are you coming down to watch Madge?"

Madeline and Kaspa went down to sit in the summer house and watch a game that was not exciting Lucian was a poor player, and did little but strike the ball into the net. Sheila, who loved tennis for the game, became irritated, and beseeched Madeline to change and join in; and, since Kaspa seemed for the moment to have exhausted his fund of conversation, the girl recovered from her headache and complied. She was a strong, graceful player, and she was well aware that she made a splendid picture of virile womanhood leaping and running and putting her supple body behind every drive and volley. It was therefore somewhat annoying to see Kaspa unostentatiously remove himself the moment her attention was off him. She wanted to show him that she was also quick, strong, and skillful, not merely a soft, spoiled child of civilization.

They did not see Kaspa again that night. He went back to the house, changed into a swimming suit, and spent the remainder of the evening around the lake shore. When darkness fell he retired into the forest and went roaming along the trails. At teatime, the following day, he arrived at the table in time to hear his guests planning their amusement for the evening.

It appeared that a traveling circus had come to the district and they were bent upon visiting it. No reference was made to Kaspa's absence. Sefton had told them that Kaspa did as he liked and would brook no restraint. He was included in the evening's outing as a matter of course.

He had little idea of what he was to see. He had read of circuses in books, but he did not connect them with menageries and cages of wild animals, among which would be African creatures, herded and confined for the masses to gape at. And in Bembo's Circus down at the township were two maned lions from eastern Africa, closely guarded behind thick bars, for their tempers were not amiable.

The fair was in full swing when they arrived. Kaspa became excited and irritable after five minutes of the noise. Eventually they gravitated to the circus tent. They got seats in the front row, separated from the arena by a low barrier. Trapeze artists and clowns did not interest Kaspa. The former were not as clever as monkeys, and the latter were like drunken natives at a dance. The entry of a small Indian elephant, who stood on a tub, aroused him for a moment, but in this subservient, dwarfed specimen he could not recognize the lord of the African wilderness.

And then from somewhere at the back came the roar of a lion. Kaspa did not move, but his whole frame suddenly became tense, and his eyes watchful.

Sefton gave an exclamation. "Great Scott! Lions! I never thought of that. I say, you people, what about going?"

"Why?" said Reeves, grinning. Sefton answered the stockbroker's question by a significant glance at Kaspa.

"Heavens," said Reeves, "it's like going out with a savage dog—have to keep him away from all the canine pugilists, you know!"

Sefton hesitated and finally subsided. He noticed that Kaspa had not moved and was sitting with eyes riveted upon the curtain at the back of the arena. It might well be all right; probably do the old fellow good to see some of his pals again.

Madeline leaned toward him and whispered: "Something is going to happen; I feel it. Let's get away from this place."

That awakened Sefton's disquiet again, but before he could answer the curtain was drawn aside and men began to push a big cage into the arena.

The cage contained two lions, a tiger and three bears.

The bears sat in the corners nodding their heads stupidly; the lions and the tiger paced to and fro with heavy, silent tread. Every time they passed each other they snarled faintly and their ears flattened. Kaspa's eyes were upon them. He was quite unaware of the audience about him, and whenever the lions snarled a low rumbling sounded in his throat. Sefton laid a restraining hand upon his shoulder. He did not notice it.

A fair, well-built man ran into the ring. He was dressed in a sky-blue uniform with gold facings, and carried a whip and a revolver in his hands. The ringmaster, a fat, pompous figure, stepped forward and raised his hat. He introduced Carlo Lefranc, the world-famous animal trainer, who would give an exhibition of the power of the mind over brute savagery. The beasts were ferocious and untamed, but Lefranc could control them. He requested the audience not to be alarmed, for the beasts could not escape from their cage.

Amidst the applause that followed this speech, Lefranc bowed, turned, and ran up the steps of the cage. Two men, armed with short, three-pronged pikes, came forward and stood near by. The trainer entered the cage quickly, shutting the door behind him. Gasps and exclamations arose from the audience as he advanced upon the snarling beasts, cracking his whip and shouting. A lion sprang aside and ran around him, bumping into the tiger as it did so. There was a furious outburst of sound, and the two animals exchanged blows with their paws until the trainer drove them apart with heavy strokes of the whip.

Madeline glanced at Kaspa. The lion-man was crouching in his seat, the rumbling in his throat had become deep and menacing. The trainer turned to the excited audience and bowed smilingly, and in an instant the lion and tiger were at each other's throats again.

Amidst the uproar Reeves shouted, "That fellow will be in trouble if he doesn't watch out!" He got to his feet, glaring irresolutely.

Lefranc could not separate the fighting beasts; they were rolling over and over as Bulu and Nguvu had done in the Nyoka thorn bush. He fired two blank cartridges from his revolver, and the lion behind him reared up and struck him on the shoulders and head.

Pandemonium broke loose. The audience was on its feet, screaming and shouting. The men with tridents were poking uselessly at the medley of fighting beasts, for both lions were now at grips with the tiger, and their snarling and roaring was deafening.

Kaspa shot from his seat, cleared the barrier at a bound, and ran to the cage. Lefranc was crawling on hands and knees, the blood streaming down his face. He made a groaning, gasping sound of fear and pain. He reached the door, unlatched it, and stumbled down the steps into the arms of the frantic ringmaster, and at that moment the tiger wrested itself free from the grappling lions and threw itself out of the door to safety, knocking the two men flying in its course.

It encountered Kaspa. The lion-man guarded a swinging paw stroke and dealt the tiger a terrific buffet on the side of the head. The animal was weak and half starved. It rolled over in the dust of the ring.

Kaspa sprang clear, the fighting call pealing from his lips, and the lions heard it and charged to the aid of their comrade, battling against the common foe. The three of them threw themselves at the tiger, biting and clawing like cats.

In a few minutes the beast was dead, and Kaspa was saying, "Steady, brothers, steady; he is dead and we are the victors." Unconsciously assuming the leadership, he raised the victory cry, and the tent echoed with awful music in which the lions joined.

The place presented a dreadful spectacle. People were fighting and scrambling at the exits, and women and children were lying among the seats, bleeding and battered by their more powerful neighbors.

The Honeydale party stood staring, too proud to join the rout, and uncertain how to act; all except Madeline, who sat still in her chair, her eyes strained upon the fight in the arena, her hand clutching her breast. The ringmaster had recovered from his upset. He had dashed behind the curtain, and now reappeared carrying a rifle.

Kaspa wheeled upon him, masking the snarling lions with his body. For the moment human speech had left him; he could only growl and snarl like the animals he protected.

ASYLUMS CHECKED IN ATTACK MURDER

Institutions Asked to Look Into Inmates' Activities Since January 27.

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The search for the slayer of Mary Helen O'Connor, 15-year-old school girl, turned today to the several insane asylums not far from the spot on Long Island where her bruised and battered body was found last Thursday.

Unable to substantiate an earlier theory that the girl, a beauty contest winner, had been the victim of a white slave ring, authorities started a systematic check of all insane asylums in the vicinity.

In Amityville, about 4 miles from the spot where her body was found, there are two small private asylums. Within 12 miles there are two large institutions—Central Islip, a State institution, and King's Park, where the inmates are mostly war veterans.

Nassau County authorities asked that these institutions check back on the activities of their inmates from the time the girl was last seen, on January 27, until her body was found.

Similar investigation was asked at Creedmore, which is 18 miles from the supposed scene of the crime, but only 3 miles from Floral Park. It was to Floral Park that Miss O'Connor planned to go when she left her own home at Rockaway Park.

The girl has been traced only as far as East New York, where she was to have changed trains, but investigators believe she may have gone on to Floral Park and been seized while she was on her way to the home of a girl friend.

The desolate spot where the girl's body was found, and where police believe she was attacked and slain with a hammer, was visited today by many Sunday sightseers.

A New Yorker AT LARGE . . .

By MARK BARRON.

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Katharine Brush is one of the few women authors who are really pretty. Despite her prolific writing, she still manages to be one of the town's most attractive ornaments at first nights and other social gatherings.

At the age of 16 she was a movie columnist for a Boston newspaper, and then moved to Ohio to begin her pacing of the literary by-ways.

It was "Young Man of Manhattan" that really brought her fame, and she wrote this after a journalistic assignment to cover the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

Now she lives with her Wall street broker husband and their young son in an apartment that is noted for its modernistic decor.

She abhors literary teas, and never becomes enthusiastic about bookish celebrities. You are more likely to find her at the theater, a prize fight or roaming about with reporters on assignments.

Her favorite place for work is in a sleeping car compartment, and her luncheon consists of three apples. She rests two days after each short story and two months after each novel.

To Her Who Waits.

Greta Keller was much amazed at this country of ours when she arrived here a year ago from Vienna. With a reputation of being one of the greatest actresses ever to play for Max Reinhardt and Sascha Guitry, she came here accompanied by much fanfare and a lucrative contract in her handbag.

But her show was postponed month after month; so Frau Keller drew her weekly salary for doing nothing more than sightseeing around Manhattan. Now, at last, New Yorkers are to hear her throaty contralto in a new extravaganza.

While playing in "Broadway" in Vienna, she attended a cabaret one night. There, although she knew little English then, she sang "Annabelle Lee" phonetically. The pianist who accompanied her was an American, Joe Sargent. She married him.

Now they live in a penthouse overlooking the East River and the other member of the menage is a dog named "Whisky."

True to Alice.

Alexander Woollcott has a picturesque way of doing things. When he returned from Russia, one of his first visits was to see Eva Le Gallienne in "Alice in Wonderland."

He drove up to the theater in a hansom, and was accompanied by Joan Baragwanath, 7-year-old daughter of Neysa McMein, artist. He insisted on the hansom as a gesture to the Victorian age when Lewis Carroll wrote his saga of Alice and the Mad Hatter.

Woollcott and Noel Coward have much the same design for living. Neither one of them likes to remain any one place long, and, at almost any moment, they are likely to pop off to some hamlet at the other side of the world. Neither one will sign any contract which would hold them in a single place for more than three months.

YOUR INCOME TAX

NO. 6.

HUSBAND AND WIFE MAY FILE JOINT OR SEPARATE RETURNS.

Husband and wife living together may each make a separate return of the income of each, or their income may be included in a single joint return. If a joint return is filed, such return is treated as a return of a taxable unit, and the income disclosed is subject to both the normal tax and the surtax.

Where separate returns are filed by husband and wife, the exemption of $2,500 may be taken by either spouse or divided between them, the husband, for example, claiming $2,000 and the wife $500. However, where the taxable income of one spouse is $4,000 or more in excess of the personal exemption, it is to the advantage of the couple if such spouse claims the total personal exemption, the reason being the difference in the normal tax rates, which are 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income above the exemptions, credits, &c., and 8 per cent on the balance. The case of a husband whose net income was $6,000 and a wife whose net income was $2,500 is an example, the husband claiming the total personal exemption.

| Net income, husband | $6,000 |
| Personal exemption | 2,500 |
| Taxable, at 4 per cent | 3,500 |
| Husband's tax | 140 |
| Net income, wife | 2,500 |
| Personal exemption | None |
| Taxable, at 4 per cent | 2,500 |
| Wife's tax | 100 |
| Total tax of husband and wife | 240 |
| Net income, husband and wife | $8,500 |
| Personal exemption | 2,500 |
| Subject to normal tax | 6,000 |
| 4 per cent on first $4,000 | 160 |
| 8 per cent on remaining $2,000 | 160 |
| Surtax on $8,500 | 25 |
| Total tax of husband and wife | 345 |

In the first example the couple are not required to pay the 8 per cent normal tax and the surtax.

NAVY TO LAUNCH AIR RAID ON WEST COAST

War Game to Determine if Pacific Defense Is Up to Standard.

Naval Base, San Pedro, Calif., Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Conditions of war were simulated today by 135 ships of the United States Navy and 31,784 officers and men to test the defense of the Pacific Coast against an enemy air raid.

The annual culmination of the year's training program of the Navy is devoted to one of the most spectacular maneuver problems in the history of the fleet.

The Navy's two great aircraft carriers, Lexington and Saratoga, with seven of the fastest scout cruisers, twelve destroyers and two supply ships, constitute the raiding force. This fleet is assembled in the Hawaiian Islands, organized in the role of an enemy to strike the Western coast of the United States.

It comprises the main aircraft strength of American naval forces. Tomorrow it is scheduled to steam from the Hawaiian Islands to launch its attack at any place from Seattle to San Diego.

On its cruise to the Hawaiian Islands to organize for this raid, it simulated an attack on the Hawaiian Islands, which Navy officers indicated showed the islands defenses were not all they should be.

Radio Engineers to Meet.

ILLUSION:

The stage is all set for target practice. The magician lifts his bow and aims an arrow at the bull's-eye. His lovely assistant then steps in front of the target and he shoots the arrow—apparently through her—and it fixes itself in the very center of the bull's-eye! And she smiles through it all while the audience gasps.

EXPLANATION:

The arrow which the marksman "shoots through" his assistant simply folds up into the crossbow! The arrow which is actually embedded in the target is shot by the girl herself from a belt concealed under her dress. She releases a little spring, the arrow unfolds, and shoots straight into the bull's-eye! It is all done in a flash! So quickly the eye cannot detect the girl's movements! To heighten the impression that the arrow has gone right through, the girl releases a ribbon from the front of her dress—the continuation, apparently, of the ribbon attached to the arrow in the target.

It's fun to be fooled— ...it's more fun to KNOW

Like to see through tricks? Then let's look at another... the illusion in cigarette advertising called "Cigarettes and Your Throat."

The audience is told that by certain magic processes tobacco can be made as soothing as cough medicine.

EXPLANATION: The easiest cigarette on your throat is the cigarette that is made from the choicest ripe tobaccos. Cheap, raw tobaccos are, as you would naturally expect, harsh in their effects upon the throat. If you have to consider your throat, the quality of the tobacco in your cigarette is important.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Camels are as non-irritating as a cigarette can be because Camels use choice, ripe, costlier tobaccos.

And because of the matchless blending of these costlier tobaccos Camels have a rich bouquet and aroma..a cool, delicious flavor.

Keep the air-tight, welded Humidor Pack on your Camels...to assure yourself and your companions a fresh, cool smoke.

RECONSTRUCTION POLICIES.

From various quarters come demands that the operations of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be broadened. Whether this should be done is a matter of legitimate difference of opinion, but some of the criticism of the corporation for not being more liberal under its present authorization is entirely unjustified. The R. F. C. was not organized as a charitable institution in any sense of the word. It was set up to operate on strictly business principles, to make loans on good security with the expectation that they would be repaid.

It may be said that the loan of some $300,000,000 to the public carriers has not solved the railroad problem. Certainly it has not, but it has saved a number of lines from being forced into receiverships, with all the wide-spread attendant evil that would have resulted to stock and security holders and further dislocation of the labor situation. It may be said that loans to the banks have not stopped bank failures, but they have greatly reduced the number, and entirely relieved the Nation of the fear of panic.

Opposition has developed in the Senate, particularly to the railroad loans made by the R. F. C. These advances have been defended, not only by the officers of the corporation, but by members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, whose approval must be secured for all such advances. Opposed to the sentiment that would limit further railroad loans is the contention that they should be liberalized to permit "character loans"; that is, loans unsecured by collateral. Much complaint has been heard that the funds given to banks have not been passed on to borrowers to aid industry. Chairman Pomerene himself has been caustic in his criticism of banks which have attained a liquidity of 100 per cent and yet do not adopt a more liberal lending policy.

The large amounts distributed by the R. F. C. have had a most salutary effect. If these funds have not ended the depression there is no question that they have been instrumental in saving the country from a worse situation. In the field of financing self-liquidating projects the corporation has encountered many handicaps. State laws and the small number of valid applications have militated against as wide a distribution of construction funds as was anticipated. This department of the corporation's work could be liberalized to advantage. It might well be done rather than confront renewed proposals for the appropriation of billions to be distributed much less effectively.

PROTECT AMERICAN SEAMEN.

Congress has refused to cripple the American merchant marine by eliminating the fund for carrying ocean mail. Senator McKellar's motion to cut this fund failed in the Senate. Congress insists that an adequate merchant marine shall be maintained to carry American commerce and to serve as an auxiliary to the Navy in times of national emergency. Yet Congress persists in its neglect of American seamen.

Americans can not afford to work for the wages that are paid to foreigners. Hence, there is a great temptation for American ship owners to employ Oriental crews, so far as the law permits. Chinese are imported to serve on American ships, in spite of the unemployment of American seamen. Obviously, it is a farce to allow Chinese seamen to hold jobs on American ships that are built at a heavy expense to taxpayers for the purpose of enhancing the national defense. One of the primary purposes of the merchant marine act is to train American seamen.

Another aspect of this situation deserves attention because of the urgent need for protecting American labor. A large number of alien seamen are smuggled into the United States. They frequently pay large sums to serve as seamen, because when their vessel arrives in an American port they are permitted to land and disappear. Under the immigration laws they could not enter the United States as immigrants. But when they enter as seamen there is no way of dealing with them, except by deportation. Only a small portion of the aliens thus smuggled into the United States are detected and deported.

On several occasions the Senate has passed a bill to prevent this illegal entry of aliens disguised as seamen, but the House seems indifferent to it. This measure now awaits action of the lower chamber, and unless it is passed before March 4 it will have to go through the entire legislative process again. By all means it should pass. Shipping interests that are interested in retaining ocean mail contracts would do well to withdraw their opposition to this bill, to avoid further questioning as to their right to mail contracts.

DEBT, 155 BILLIONS.

There is so much discussion of indebtedness in the United States that a classification of the interest-bearing debts, public and private, made by the National Industrial Conference Board is of timely interest. The survey covers the seven years from 1922 to 1929. The grand total shows an indebtedness of $154,761,000,000, with yearly interest charge for 1929 of $8,607,000,000. This was an increase of $40,000,000,000 in seven years.

Farm mortgages in 1922 amounted to a total of $9,100,000,000. By 1929 this had increased to only $9,241,000,000, with interest charges amounting to $554,000,000. Farm debts other than mortgages, which in 1922 totaled $4,283,000,000, were reduced in seven years to $2,983,000,000, making the total farm indebtedness in the latter year $12,224,000,000, with interest of $733,000,000. Total farm indebtedness, therefore, decreased more than a billion during the period.

The funded debt of the steam railroads of the country in 1929 amounted to $12,459,000,000, an increase of about $700,000,000 in the seven-year period.

Public agencies, Federal, State and local, show a 1929 total debt of $30,195,000,000, on which taxpayers pay interest amounting to nearly $1,500,000,000. Of the aggregate debt the Federal share was $16,743,000,000, a decrease from $22,996,000,000 in 1922. State and local indebtedness in the same period grew from $7,144,000,000 to $13,452,000,000. During prosperous times the Federal debt was reduced six billions while local debts increased in like amount.

Nearly one-half the total debt of the country is owed by corporations and this debt grew in the seven years from $42,386,000,000 to $74,661,000,000, with interest charges of more than $4,000,000,000. This indebtedness is about equally divided between funded and unfunded debts.

Individual debts increased during the years under survey from $16,933,000,000 to $24,971,000,000, paying $1,500,000,000 in interest. When taxes are added to the grand total of interest it means that the fixed charges paid by Americans are well in excess of $20,000,000,000 a year.

No complete figures are available to show the amount of indebtedness at the close of last year, but the Department of Agriculture estimates that farm mortgages have declined since 1929 to about $8,500,000,000. Foreclosures are largely responsible for the reduction. According to this estimate the total of farm indebtedness, counting further liquidation of debts other than mortgages, is now about $11,000,000,000.

RESEARCH VALUE.

The laboratories of the University of Illinois go in for very practical science. A check of the year's technological research by the institution shows that industry and the citizens of the State have benefited from these activities, either in positive gains or savings effected, amounting to $124,400,000. No less than 36 research projects that have been under study for several years are credited with the discoveries that have accomplished this result.

This yearly saving is said to be very conservatively estimated. It is not simply a one-time saving, but one that in some instances has been realized for several years past and will continue indefinitely for the benefit of industry and agriculture. Fortunately, under present conditions, few of the economies worked out at the university contemplate new methods requiring less man power, but rather are concerned with improvements in materials and methods and savings in waste or crop damage.

Among the items in the current list of improvements and savings are research developments affecting boiler embrittlement, steel column improvements, beam and girder strength, ductility of zinc, welded joints, lead sheathing strength, turbine disks and blades, machine and auto parts, cast iron fatigue, and car axles. Other tests have included train resistance, a method of increasing mileage without increase of power, improved house heating, radio tubes, photoelectric cells, coal extraction, mine ventilation, alfalfa inoculation, improved corn yield, improved dairy cows and control of apple and peach diseases and insects.

This is only a partial list of the research lines that have been completed, but it serves to show in what wide variety and practical ways the university laboratories operate. Other studies, virtually completed but not announced, are reported to be of almost equal value as compared with this year's quota. The aim of the institution has come to be the announcement of a yearly budget of research work that means the saving of $100,000,000 a year.

AIR TRANSPORT GROWS.

It is a good indication of present strength and future growth that aviation has been able to show a steady expansion through the depression years. While other forms of transportation, particularly the railroads, have suffered severe declines in the volume of business, air transport has recorded notable increases. Last year the most important transcontinental line more than doubled its passenger business.

During 1932 the United Air Lines increased their mileage by more than 18 per cent and the number of passengers carried increased from 43,000 in 1931 to 89,000 last year. The total number of passengers carried by all air lines last year has not been entirely computed as yet, but it approaches the half-million mark.

While domestic air mail is also increasing it still remains a minor fraction of the total mail carriage, only about 1 per cent. All air mail is carried at a considerable loss, the Government making up the difference as an aid to aviation that has been invaluable in the development of the industry. It has recently been estimated by the operator of one air line that all the United States mail could be distributed by planes at a cost of $40 per ton. This would be cheaper than the present cost, but it would require an expansion of the air service about 100 times. Furthermore it would take from the already hard-pressed railroads an important subsidy.

This promises to be a most important year in the history of aviation. Negotiations looking to further combinations among the operating companies are under way, while numerous intimations of more extended and faster service are heard. Most of the companies have been operating at a loss, despite the growing business, but that has not daunted the backers of an industry that has shown such capacity for development in spite of hard times, and which gives evidence of continued expansion that will before long place it upon a substantial basis.

SCHOOL ECONOMIES.

Three years of depression have made inroads upon the funds devoted to education. Many of the higher institutions of learning are finding it difficult to maintain former standards. Among the public schools of the nation a survey that has just been completed by the Office of Education shows that this year will show a decrease in total expenditures of about 22 per cent.

Estimates based on this study indicate that the cost of education per child per day is only 48.7 cents. This is a decrease from the 1929 level of 62.8 cents. Of the amount spent three years ago 12.8 cents went for new buildings and equipment and other improvements, only 50.2 cents being devoted to teachers' salaries, books, heating, &c. Of the 48.7 cents per capita that will be spent this year only 4 cents will be expended on physical improvements. Present costs are the lowest since 1920.

The Office of Education finds that the comparative figures do not fully disclose the extent to which public education has been forced to economize. The estimates do not take into consideration the increased proportion of high school pupils in the total school enrollment. Owing to the scarcity of work many older boys and girls are attending school. High school costs are, naturally, about double those of lower grades, so that this change has a marked effect upon the total school expense. In 1920, when the average per capita cost of public school education was 38.9 cents, the high school enrollment was only 10 per cent of the whole, now it is about double that figure.

Too much credit can not be given the teachers of America. Notwithstanding reduced budgets there has been little deterioration in school standards. This is largely due to the self-sacrificing army of devoted instructors, who have remained faithful to their tasks even when compensation was reduced and in many cases unpaid over long periods. American teachers deserve the praise of all citizens for their patriotic devotion to duty.

Beer is just around the corner, struggling with an old footpad who hangs around there, holding everybody up.

March 4 will officiate just once more, but it doesn't guarantee anything, not even weather.

Here's hoping that Frank Roosevelt will hook another kingfish.

Pat Harrison seems to think a fault-finding commission would help.

MR. FORD'S UTOPIA

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Henry Ford is doubtless correct in his statement that "the machine age is barely started" and that in the real machine age which is to come "the dirt and ugliness and confusion and noise and disregard of human rights which are all about us today will be done away with." Mr. Ford does not refer to the millennium. He is merely pointing to the many opportunities all about us for improvement, opportunities which will provide employment for millions and profitable investment for thousands.

Mr. Ford's remarks are remindful of the comment by another motor manufacturer, Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors, who is an engineer. Two years or more ago, the cry that the machine age had brought us to the verge of ruin and that there was nothing left for millions of men to do caused Mr. Kettering to point out some of the opportunities that confront us. Perhaps the principal of these was the reformation in heating and ventilating of which the world stands in need. Billions must be spent in new construction if ugliness is to be removed.

Elimination of noise and dirt largely must come about through the reduction of friction which causes both. Some of the changes to be wrought will include quiet motors for airplanes and still quieter automobile operation, roller bearings for trains, which also will be cooled and ventilated like movie theaters and the most modern public buildings, and elimination of the shrieking and clanging trolley car, along with its rails and overhead wires.

The future world doubtless will be electrically operated, with power generated and harnessed at the source, whether it be coal mine, gas well, or water-power plant. In that day brains will have triumphed. Cities will have ceased dumping sewage into the sources of their water supply. By that time, too, it is to be hoped, political machines will have been relegated to the junk pile, while an enlightened and happy electorate educates its public servants in schools of governmental administration and chooses them on the basis of ability and experience. Mr. Ford, who has had some experience in being flattened out by political juggernauts, probably will agree that this is one type of machine that only adds to "the dirt and ugliness and confusion."

BRAVE WOMEN.

I like the way of Mrs. Blake, with no apologies to make,
Who sets her simple table now with good old jam and bread,
Then bids you sit and share her meal and has the courage to conceal
The blow which left her poor of purse but could not bow her head.

I like the way of Mrs. Brown, who wears with pride her last year's gown
And bravely hums a song of cheer and keeps a smiling face.
She meets her friends from day today and never has a word to say
In anger or in bitterness about her sorry case.

I like the way of Mrs. Black, whose eyes seem never turning back
To bygone splendors and the joys which were but are no more.
Though heavy now must be her cross,
she doesn't whimper at her loss
But still retains the courage and the charm she had before.

'Tis man who frets his soul about the things which he must do without;
The women, more resigned to fate,
stand bravely to the blow,
And many a wife who sighs alone let's never a sign of grief be shown,
For just how deeply she is hurt her loved ones msun't know.

If You Would Judge His Beliefs, Observe the Kind of Man They Have Made Him

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IT is becoming the fashion, among those who talk more than they think, to say that all religions are much alike and one about as good as another.

As a matter of fact, most of the best-known religions are similar in two particulars and in these two only: they teach the worship of a Supreme Being, and ceremony and ritual have in large measure replaced the simplicity, sincerity and spirituality of their early history.

The religion of our civilization has nothing else in common with the religions of Asia.

Mohammedanism, which borrowed much of the Bible but makes Mohammed greater than Moses, Abraham or Jesus, has 200 million followers; Confucianism and Taoism, which teach a similar system of ethics, a life of contemplation and reason and avoidance of force, have 350 million; Brahmanism, chief support of India's caste system, teaches nothing better than philosophic contemplation of life and controls the destiny of 230 millions; Buddhism, once a philosophy of self-denial, virtue and freedom from earthly passions, has 150 million devotees to whom it is almost wholly a matter of ritual, and Shintoism, the primitive religion of Japan, teaches worship of heroes and ancestors to 25 millions.

These are the religions of Asia and by their fruits you may know them. The Turks, the Arabians, the Indians, the Chinese and the Japanese are in large measure products of their religions.

This doesn't mean that religion makes racial peculiarities, nor does it mean that climate, location and chance played no part in making racial history. Let it be said in fairness, also, that all lands contain good and able men, as this one breeds evil and foolish ones.

But race, energy, intelligence, climate and good fortune are not alone responsible for the building of this Christian civilization.

It was Christianity that taught our breed justice and mercy, equality and freedom, chastity and righteousness, the brotherhood of man and compassion for the weak, and these qualities made America what it is.

There is only one fair way to judge a religion. That is by the kind of people it develops. If all religions affected men as Christianity does, all lands would be much like America.

POLITICAL COMMENT

The Tennessee Project.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

Lacking full details and even a hint of the financing methods, it is not possible to pass even a tentative judgment on the colossal project for reforestation and reclamation of the Tennessee Valley, revealed by the President-elect as his first major effort to combat depression.

Mr. Roosevelt apparently expects to finance his plan by the issuance of bonds. This raises two questions, first the desirability of floating such an enormous bond issue, to compete with private business for available funds, and second the soundness of the undertaking and the possibility of making the project pay for itself within the life of the bonds. These are not questions that can be settled off-hand.

Changing Your Mind.
St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, says Congress is being deluged with golden specifics. He estimates that at least 10 formal programs for recovery are being received daily by the House and Senate. The impression is very widespread that we can somehow be hoisted out of the pit overnight, notwithstanding it took us years to get into it.

The more cautious statesman takes a seat near the fire escape, not assuming too much at a time when much better qualified men are not so sure they know any magic by means of which the world can be brought back to normal. Representative Rainey, the House leader, says:

"In these days and times, there are rapid shiftings of views on all subjects. Any man who takes a stand one day and can't change it the next can't keep up with the developments."

Yankee Thrift.
Atchison Globe.

The depression has finally reached France, and the people of that country are pawning their automobiles. We Americans are different. We pawn our homes, and keep our cars.

Inaugural Parade.
Boston Herald.

After all, an inaugural parade ought to be something of a comfort to the new President. We should think he'd enjoy seeing 10,000 men going through Washington without asking for a job.

Brass Rail Talk.
Lexington, Ky., Herald.

With all this talk about hard times what might we expect if they reopened the saloons and started conversation right?

Out They Go.
Boston Herald.

The trouble with elective public servants, writes an authority on political science, is that they don't put themselves out for the voters. Oh, never mind. Every now and then the voters do that for them.

Tough Job Gets Tougher.
Kansas City Times.

The year 1932 was a great year for the party out of power; it was bound to win. Correspondingly, it was a tough year for the party in power; it was bound to lose. Conditions took over politics. Party functions merely took over the processes.

In turn, 1933 is a tough year for a party to come into power. The incoming administration has a stupendous task before it. It is quite conceivable that right now the party retiring from power has the best of it. The President-elect is beginning to encounter the difficulties that are going to beset his path from the start of the new administration.

A Candid Democrat.
Boston Transcript.

Bold, clear words Honorable David I. Walsh has just spoken in the United States Senate. "Unless the new administration and the department heads have the courage to eliminate the positions that have grown up as a luxury in a time of plenty," he said, "we are going to talk in vain about economy. If we are going to cut salaries, let's do it by cutting our own salaries first." This advice how to begin the vital work of balancing the national budget proves that Senator Walsh has thought the job through to a finish. He sees the practical necessity of accomplishing governmental economy, knows that it will help the Nation's recovery, and is ready and eager to be among the first to accept a cut of his personal income, confident that the results of similar action all along the line will, in the end, bring gain and not loss.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Common-Sense Reasoning Leads to Conclusion That Sales Tax Is Necessary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Many of the bills proposed, and apparently even contemplated for passage by Congress, merely aggravate the conditions which they purport to remedy. The losses already incurred throughout the Nation by the shrinkage of the value in investments, while huge, are but a drop in the bucket in comparison with the daily losses that are incurred by business stagnation and the idleness of thousands of individuals. There is no cure for this latter loss except through the restoration of public confidence, and public confidence can never be restored as long as Congress proposes to adopt wildcat plans for paying the debts of one class of the population with the life savings of the other.

The man who has denied himself throughout his life, lived within his income, and laid aside a few dollars that he might not be a burden upon the community in his old age naturally views with alarm proposals which have for their end the appropriation of his savings to pay the bills of the man who never denied himself anything; who bought all that he wanted on the instalment plan and trusted to luck to be able to pay when the time came.

Congress should immediately enact a sales tax law of such scope as will not only balance the national budget but will yield sufficient to enable the Federal Government to lend to the several States whatever sums the States may need to take care of their unemployed. But this money should be lent to the States, and not given, and the States should be required to issue their bonds in order to get the money. If the States are spending their own money there would be some effort made to see that it is judiciously spent. If various agencies are spending Federal money, they will not care how it is spent.

We are in enough of a mess with respect to war debts without repeating that process at home. The Federal Government is already in the shipping business; the probabilities are strong that it is going to be in the railroad business, and if Congress enacts much more fool legislation, Uncle Sam will find himself in the real estate business upon a scale undreamed of.

The sales tax is the only medium through which the holders of tax-exempt securities can be made to pay their fair share of unemployment relief. That tax is the most equitable one, because the man who has the most and spends the most will pay the largest share of the tax, while the man who has little and spends little will pay a correspondingly smaller part of the tax. And if food, fuel and clothing are exempted the poor man will pay nothing.

OBSERVER.

University Student Compares Present Liquor Conditions With Those of 1913.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the four years that I have been in Washington I have met at least twenty intoxicated men on Pennsylvania avenue northwest, between First street and Twentieth, while going to and from classes at George Washington University.

If historical evidence is to be trusted, things used to happen here, the faint likeness of which these eyes of mine have never seen. For instance, this scene pictured by the Washington Star November 16, 1913, describing student behavior following Georgetown vs. University of Virginia football game: "In one hotel boys and girls got drunk to celebrate. * * * The riot started early in the evening. The drinking rooms of the place were crowded by 8 o'clock and mobs fought for possession of the tables. Police interfered now and then when things grew too hot * * * and the ejection of a drunk was a monumental affair, as two policemen had to battle with upward of twenty alleged collegiates before they could haul the protesting person to the box * * *"

It seems to me entirely unscientific to pass judgment upon the present without considering the characteristics of the past.

GORDON BARNES.

Mr. Simms Does Not Think Much of Amendments to the Constitution.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have now added the twentieth amendment to our Federal Constitution, and the end is not yet. Soon this once noble document will be a crazy quilt, indeed. Some of our recent tinkerings with that magna charta ought to teach us to go a little slower in this direction. Large betterments are promised by these amendments, but alas, they seldom come. Woman suffrage was to purify politics—has it? Election of United States senators by direct primary and vote promised the same thing, and also better material for that august body. Has either of these been realized? We also put prohibition into the Constitution, and now a number of people seem anxious to get it out. If a member of Congress is fitted for the position when elected I see no reason why he could not serve out a lame duck period with as much fidelity as when elected.

This twentieth amendment seems to place an indictment against all members of the lower house, and the time fixed for the inauguration is the worst that could have been made. If the House were abolished nobody would be injured except 435 politicians and the country at large would be saved an enormous expense. But this country is so completely hogtied by these politicians, assisted by the electorate itself, that any material betterment seems to be rather distant.

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Mother dear: It is snowing big, dry flakes. The first snow this year in Reno. A child down the hall, who has lived in Shanghai all her life and never seen snow before, is afraid of it. Her mother "happens" to be here at the same time as another American resident of Shanghai, a Mr. Temple. Daisy, who stood at the foot of my bed this morning while I ate breakfast, regaling me with gossip, made a prophesy. "When they come from the same place it always turns out they have come together. They are always careful like that at first and then after a time they get tired playing up."

There was one woman who stayed here for five months, no one could imagine why, and before she left she told Daisy she had been unable to choose between her two children, who were both there with her. The court had decreed the custody of one child to her, the other to her husband, and she was to have the choice. She finally decided on the girl.

Daisy said the Van Cott case was the most contested case she remembers. The husband and wife arrived at the same time, Mrs. Van Cott coming here to the hotel (Daisy always says "I had Mrs. So and So," meaning that they were on her floor.) The case was in the courts here for six weeks, and he finally got the divorce. But he had to pay all her expenses, including her lawyers, and give her a settlement that "ran up to the millions."

The oldest woman that Daisy has "had" was over sixty. She cried all the six weeks, telling Daisy the last day that if her husband would take her back she would still go. She married him thirty-five years ago, when he was making $18 a week. Now he is a nationally known financier, he has fallen in love with a younger woman. She was accompanied out here by her three children and seven grandchildren. He settled some large amounts on her and a quarter of a million on each of the children. (Daisy rolls out the millions so easily.) Also big names, suggesting breakfast-foods, razors, vacuum cleaners, &c. There were four members of the same family all in the hotel at the same time. What would I do without Daisy! But as far as I am concerned this is all talk.

I haven't seen any one very exciting. After dinner last night Mrs. Oliver and I sat in Mrs. French's room listening to her green radio. She is wary and secretive about her divorce and takes it all frightfully seriously. The hotel manager sent her a poinsetta for Christmas, and she has decorated her room with jade ornaments and hangings from the Oriental shop downstairs. Mrs. Oliver tells in a charming voice witty stories about authors and actors. She won't tell us her name and has registered at the hotel desk in her maiden name and from New York, when, of course, the whole point is to register yourself as a resident of Reno. She is frantic that she may have lost a day on her time and is hurrying to a lawyer this morning. She thinks death is beautiful, life too much trouble, and she has six trunks arriving. (She wasn't sure of the climate.) Both of them take triple bromides every night or they couldn't sleep a wink. Mrs. Oliver has decided to give Reno a week's trial. Since she has found me she does not think she will have the collapse. "How do I keep my nerves in such wonderful order!" They wanted me to go down to the station this morning to see the Overland come in but I didn't get up in time. They are nice enough and it is fine hearing my own voice again, but I wish they would cheer up. ELIZABETH.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

WORTH has carried over his original decolletage from the winter to the spring and summer models. This decolletage, as I told you some time ago, is a perfect compromise between a newer mode which likes the high neckline, and an older idea of the formality of the lower neckline. In case you missed my description, I will tell you again that this new decolletage can best be described as a double decolletage, if you can picture it from that. For example, a fairly high, round decolletage in front, will have a cut out place below, so that the strap between, cut on a curve, will button over to one side. Difficult to picture from mere words!

A feature of most decolletages for evening is this high effect in both front and back, with the skin showing through below and cut very low under the arms. For summer, the higher front and back decolletage, cut very low at either side under the arms by way of contradiction, is popular.

* * * *

The idea of the expensive bag top which was supposed to be changed over from bag to bag, but seemingly never was, fell into disfavor for that very reason. But today it is reviving again—perhaps due to the renewed interest women have taken in the economical side of clothes.

When you buy an expensive bag, see that what you are paying for is worth it—fifty and sixty dollar bags that depend merely upon fabric or line for their appeal are not a wise investment. But a bag at this price which shows a jewelled or otherwise valuable ornament or top is a justifiable purchase. If you are certain that the top ornament can be used again This of course can not be done by amateurs, but can be done by regular bag makers. Any specialty shop or department store in any city will have a new bag put on your old bag top for you, resulting in a perfectly finished object.

* * * *

A new kind of patchwork—for your tea set this time, or of course for the bedspread if you wish. That's what this week's leaflet suggests, along with several table set ideas you will like. Remnants are running riot as it were, and who hasn't more spare finger time than usual, these days! Some of us sit around and mope, of course, and the rest of us get to work and make lovely things with which to surround ourselves, for the sake of the inspiration beauty always gives. If you are one of Us—send your stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Post for this week's illustrated leaflet with its tablecloth and bedspread ideas. You'll love 'em!

What Today Means

By MARY BLAKE

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 a. m. to 9:55 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 6:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:10 p. m. and from 7:30 p. m to 8:40 p. m.

Influences on this February 6 would seem to make for a day in which "thought" will prove most productive. The practical dream, or plan, or scheme "hatched" on this day will most probably bring results far better than expected. The day will seem dull if measured by outward and visible signs of activity, for there will be few.

The child born on this February 6 will be the quiet and meditative type. Immersed in deep thought, he will sit for long periods seemingly inactive. Look for him to have ideas later in life and to be able to put them to practical use. Mechanically inclined, male children born on this day will have the ability to plan ahead, and to make their plans physical realities. The female children will grow up to make splendid mothers and wives.

If February 6 is the date of your birth, there is more than a little of the destructive in your nature; you seem to delight in seeing things go wrong. You are inclined to criticize people, and not always justly; possibly it is just a desire on your part to "get in a little dig" at the other fellow. You have many small faults of your own which you should seek first to overcome. You are not neat in your dress, you are inclined to be careless about your work and you are not punctual.

Born on February 6, your mood varies from moment to moment, depending upon where you are and with whom you are. You are not a constant person. You have difficulty in making up your mind, for you are inclined to agree with the person to whom you are talking at the time. After getting several opinions on any matter, you can not act on them and make a decision yourself. You are not at all the executive type, but are much more inclined to work along under orders. There is a certain jolly side to your nature that "gets by" with the crowd. You are inclined to haggle and argue over details of no importance. If you could develop an eye for the important things of life you could go far, for you are not afraid of hard work.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

It just goes to show what being a ne plus ultra tap dancer will do to you!

I mean if Ruby Keeler had not been such an expert in pedaling broken rhythms, she probably never would have met Al Jolson, and if she had never met Al Jolson it is more than likely she never would have become Mrs. Al Jolson. So, if she had never become Mrs. Al Jolson the chances are she would not be living out on the West Coast, and consequently would not have been tossed into "Forty-second Street" by the Warner Brothers or signed to a contract on the strength of her work in that gay and undraped opus, now headed toward the Capital with a whole trainload of trappings, and due to arrive on the circus siding outside Union Station along about Inauguration time.

Ruby Keeler.

But all these things happened to Ruby Keeler—and, of course, it would be this column's luck to be out when she stopped by to say "Hello!" one day during her week at Loew's Fox way back yonder, B. C. (Before the Crash)—just because she can tap 'em twice where other people only can once.

And all the time what she wants to be is a good golfer!

After quizzing her in the matter, that amiable getter-abouter, Mr. Hubbard Keavy, head man of our West Coast finger-putter-on-the-main-issuer, reports that Ruby would rather see her name on the sports pages than in the drama sections—which will please Mr. Povich, but doesn't make much sense to me!

But, because old husband Asa would rather she'd become a movie star, Ruby is going to give it a whirl.

Her first picture—"Forty-second Street"—showed Mrs. Jolson to such good advantage that Warners insisted on giving her a contract. It is said Ruby didn't want to sign it, but Al advised her to.

"I don't like pictures, really I don't," Ruby said one day. "But Al does, and so I feel I should. You work too hard. Up early and to bed early. I'd much rather be on a golf course."

Ruby almost made her picture debut a few years ago when husband Al was Warners' best bet. But Al discovered that whenever Ruby visited him on the set, he invariably forgot his lines. It would never do to have Ruby around all the time, and so they gave up the idea of appearing together.

Ruby Keeler appears almost as naive off the screen as she is in her role in "Forty-second Street."

During the first week's filming she seemed to be afraid she'd make an error, but her only serious mistake was not speaking loudly enough for the microphones.

And she was as awed as a high school freshman when she was introduced to the stars.

"I'll bet Ruby's idea of a great role would be that of heroine in a Bobby Jones two-reeler," says Mr. Keavy. "It might not be a bad idea at that."

Oh, Mr. Keavy, so this is all part of the old build-up, eh? Not bad!

According to Bulletin No. 12 of the American Theater Society, the board of directors of that admirable organization worked up quite a temperature at their meeting on January 25, when the matter of bookings came up for discussion.

Says the bulletin, in part:

"In some of our cities that have only one or two subscription plays we realize that the situation has become most embarrassing for the subscription manager and the theater as well. We want you to know that this situation has been unavoidable and that everything possible is being done to correct it by this office.

"Conditions have made it extremely difficult for managers to venture far on the road with large productions. Various cancelled bookings which have occurred have been, in each case, completely unavoidable and have been done only with the greatest reluctance. Had general business conditions been as favorable for the subscription plan as they were in May and June, when the American Theater Society formed their plan and made their promises to both subscription managers and subscribers, we should have presented our plays regularly and followed the original plan. This has been impossible, although every effort has been made here in New York."

Continuing, the bulletin carries the heartening tidings that announcement with regard to bookings may be expected in the near future, provided present hopes materialize.

Of more importance, perhaps, is the reminder that the money collected from subscribers in each city where the Society has branches is on deposit in full in a local bank and could be refunded penny for penny at any time, should such a course become necessary.

So now you know.

Speaking of inauguration time, as we were somewhere back there, Manager Meakin of RKO-Keith's calls up to say that prospects are bright for securing "So This Is Africa!" for the inaugural crowds at his opera house.

That would be Wheeler and Woolsey in the picture they made for Columbia after RKO-Radio had come to the conclusion that the boys had gone dead on them after all that pother about separating for good and all, and everything.

"So This Is Africa," according to all report, is the best thing they have ever done—so good, as a matter of fact, that when RKO heard about the rushes, they did a little rushing on their own account and signed the lads right up again to make a magic lantern show or two back on the old home lot.

Another item from RKO-Keith's is to the effect that John Barrymore in "Topaze" will occupy the Fifteenth street screen the week of February 17, instead of February 24, as was originally announced, exchanging places with Irene Dunne in "No Other Woman."

This is not only a gentlemanly gesture, but a little canny business foresight to avoid a conflict with Miss Dunne's "The Secret of Madame Blanche" at Loew's Palace.

Unless Miss Laura Benham's Friday enthusiasm was based upon a wholly nebulous anticipation, Miss Irene Beasley, headlining with Harriet Hoctor—but not in the same act—at the Earle this week, lunched Saturday in the Speaker's private dining room at the Capitol as guest of Speaker and Vice President-elect John Nance Garner and other distinguished Southern solons, who were egged on, I believe, to this recognition of a gifted singer from the Southland by Bascom Timmons, former president of the Press Club.

What with "Of Thee I Sing" and one thing and another, if Congress doesn't watch its step, and perhaps even if it does, it will be sending the boy down to the corner drug store for grease paint and mascara the first thing it knows!

Noel Coward must be having more fun starring with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "Design for Living" that he expected when the piece was just breaking in. Current report has it that the author-actor has agreed to extend the Broadway run of the comedy from 12 weeks to 21. Perhaps that's what he meant all along and just got the figures twisted.

It pays to advertise—especially in The Washington Post!

After persistently whanging away in my artlessly carefree and maybe a little ironic fashion about the "palatial suite of offices, with their tasselated floors, Tiffany chandeliers," and this and that, occupied by this department, I am writing this Sabbath evening, on wallpaper, with one foot in the paste bucket and the other on a step ladder up out of the debris of wall scrapings, plaster, putty, old moulding and empty orange juice bottles—I shouldn't be surprised!

It seems the paperhangers broke in some time during the night of Saturday and wrecked the joint!

And, boy, was that a ground hog!

"SINGAPORE TO HONG KONG." Third of five "Around the World" travelalks by E. M. Newman, illustrated with colored slides and motion pictures. Under the direction of Charles Mercer. Reviewed Sunday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

Looping South from Singapore and taking in the islands of Java and the much-photographed Bali, then progressing northward to the Philippines and ending at Hongkong and Canton, the "most Chinese of all Chinese cities," E. M. Newman yesterday described the third lap of his current around-the-world tour.

In word and picture Mr. Newman compared the old and the new in these several countries, drawing on memory, and on what remnants are yet visible, for his account of the "good old days" and the places as they are today for the modern contrasts.

From Singapore, the cross-roads of the Far East, and under British jurisdiction, the tour proceeded to Java, Batavia, and Weltreden, under nominal Dutch rule, but whose inner government remains in the hands of an absolute sultan, whose entourage includes everything necessary for a full life, including religion and amusement, with the dancing princesses, the royal actors and archers attracting no small amount of interest in the country.

Then Bali, the unspoiled island, a sort of modern Garden of Eden. Chief among the sights and customs of Bali's religious dances, propitiating the gods, and symbolic of the driving out of demons are shown.

Back on United States' soil, the copra industry of the island of Sulu was detailed before proceeding on to the walled city of Manila with its new government buildings, modern hotels and entirely metropolitan air standing out in bold relief from the native taxis, the nipa shacks and the natives themselves with their water buffalo and quaint customs.

Crossing the China Sea to Hongkong, there is found a strange and fascinating mixture of the old and the new, more or less segregated, but sufficiently close to make the contrast startling.

And finally, up the Pearl River to Canton, a city which, although modernized to a large degree, especially in its larger commercial sections, still remains typically Chinese.

THE EXPERT VERSUS THE "DUB."

I AM emphatically opposed to a largely prevailing practice of advocating two systems of Contract—one for the expert and the other for the average player. Every hope of improvement must be given up when a player is taught a specially prepared set of superficial and incomplete rules on the ground that the proper methods and the only winning ones are too difficult for him to grasp, but must be reserved as special food for the elect advanced players. As a result of this "baby talk," the poor "dub" is caught in a vicious circle. The more lessons he takes, the more books he reads, the more he absorbs the fatal, specially prepared diet. As a result, we have in America a large and growing class of expert beginners. Some writers fall into the even more serious error of producing highly complicated and extremely cumbersome improvements of the Approach-Forcing System of bidding under one name or another. Life is far too short to study geometry twice.

The irony of all this is that the methods commonly used by master players, far from being complicated, are essentially simple, because they must be in strict consonance with the logic of bidding and playing situations. It is for this reason that I advocate a system of bidding based entirely on natural, inevitable inferences and opposed to far-fetched conventions, crippling artificial counts and superficial complications. Simplicity and precision are the essential characteristics of an effective system of bidding, thus making it at once adaptable for championship and expert play and for the average player as well.

The laws of Contract Bridge have recently undergone rather radical revision. Increased penalties are provided for doubled undertricks, not vulnerable, and increased bonuses for Grand Slams bid and made. These changes are basic, and, as a result, certain revisions and additions were found necessary to comply with the spirit and letter of the new laws. Any player, however, who has mastered the principles of Approach bidding has nothing to unlearn. The Approach principle and its corollary, the Forcing System, are at the base of any sound system of Contract bidding. We all use a system, whether in bidding at the Contract Bridge table or in ordering the affairs of our every-day life. Probably any player, if he had the time, could work out for himself an entirely satisfactory system of bidding, but most of us, unfortunately or otherwise, are much preoccupied with the business of making a living, and thus in recreation are dependent upon the work of others.

In a series of articles explaining the changes, or rather additions, made necessary by the new laws and the improved standards of bidding and play, I shall outline in these columns some of the principle additions and refinements designed to equip every Bridge player to cope with the problems of bidding in expert play.

I have already dealt with the principles of plastic valuation, the method used by experts to avoid the mathematical count. Other articles will deal with such subjects as the part-Forcing One over One, Slam bidding, Inferential Forcing bids, Sign-Off bids, the new Jump Overcall as a defensive measure, the requirements for Forcing Takeouts, Forcing bids with a part-score and other question

The Meanderer

Finds a Thrilling Book . . . a Tricky Umbrella—Paper Handkerchiefs and Cheap Complexions.

Sent out into wide Washington to wander at her will and write what she would, the Meanderer, oddly enough, went only a few steps from the gray stone shelter of The Washington Post building. It wasn't dislike of adventure. It was the weather that mattered . . . remember how it was downtown Saturday?

Just a short dash through the snowy gale and around two corners brought the Meanderer to the hospitable warmth and allure of an old-established book house, a spot cherished by bookworms, where their tastes have been satisfied for more than 40 years. There she learned that Clara Longworth de Chambrun's work on the life of her brother, the late Nicholas Longworth, is having the hundreds of buyers it naturally would attract in this city; that "Ann Vickers," the latest offering of Sinclair Lewis, is another best seller; but that, in the words of the manager of the book store, "the most thrilling of the new publications is "British Agent" by R. H. Bruce Lockhart. The author of "British Agent" describes daringly in this book his experiences as British consular agent at Moscow during the revolution.

"A man I know stayed up all night to read that book," the book store manager told the Meanderer. "And I offered a woman customer her money back if she found it slow reading. She came back to tell me that she scarcely put it down from start to finish."

It was a good day for selling umbrellas. So when she saw a group of women about the umbrella department in a smart F street shop that neighbors the book store the Meanderer wondered if in a year like this, when everything had been all wet, there shouldn't have been some new ideas in umbrellas. And right there it was—a brand-new copper-framed, copper-handled silk umbrella, in extra large sizes, with a removable handle for the traveler's convenience. The Meanderer will tell you where to go for these new umbrellas if you will call National 4205, Extension 52. Price selections on the umbrellas range from $2.95 to $15.

A good day for plenty of handkerchiefs, too, for there were plenty of coughers and sneezers about. The Meanderer belongs in both categories. Her solution was a box of 230 tissue-paper handkerchiefs, bought around the corner from The Washington Post building—for just 19 cents!

Rosy cheeks and red lips of the drug store kind may just now be achieved with one of the preferred brands of toiletries—Houbigant's Quelques Fleurs—at the lowest price Washington "probably has ever seen for cosmetics of such quality. The double compact, including Houbigant's powder and lipstick, is but 49 cents in extraordinary reductions at the store where the handkerchiefs were, while the triple compact—powder, lipstick and rouge—is but 89 cents. They are in slim gold boxes in modern design.

Telephone your questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 52, and they will be promptly answered; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Mature Women Are Urged To Seek Youth by Romance

Women of 40, 50 and over should go in for colorful adventures in life and romance, if they wish to be young and charming. They should not be content with the indifferent and taken-for-granted acceptance of their husbands and children. The world calls them to live, act and influence it in thousands of interesting ways. To stay at home and wait for old age is fatal and, of course, a foolish mistake.

These startling opinions were vigorously expressed by Mlle. Manka Rubinstein, America's foremost beauty advisor, who arrived here yesterday. Mlle. Rubinstein has just returned from an extensive tour of research and study abroad, during which she conferred with the foremost scientists and physicians in Vienna, Berlin and Paris on the latest remarkable discoveries in diet, rejuvenation, reducing and skin care. She brings with her, too, news on the dernier cri in artistic cosmetics—all of which she will place at the service of the women of Washington this week. She will be at Woodward & Lothrop's in the toilet goods department available for consultation gratis on any and all beauty and complexion problems.

Amplifying her theme that women of 40 and over need the filip of romance and adventure to rejuvenate them, Mlle. Rubinstein said:

"A great many women are prematurely old because they have 'given up.' They have reconciled themselves to being just a daily habit to their husbands, friends and children. They are living a dull gray rut. They occupy—in so many cases—the position of a dusty, faded household idol, pushed into an out-of-the-way corner.

"The new woman of 40 and over—as I see her—is a threat to the smugness of men. She takes young hearts by storm. I have seen this happen so often in Europe, where women of much over 40 are energetic and charming. Sarah Bernhardt, for example, retained her magnetic spell until the very close of her long life.

"I have seen European women go out into new activities, business, philanthropic, professional—or just romantic. I have seen them dance beautifully at tea dances and scintillate at a dinner table and monopolize the attention of men to the amazement and chagrin of younger women.

"My advice to women over 40—over 50, indeed—is to decide on an energetic career from now on. Let them take walks in unexpected places, tea, dance and dine with those who appreciate their wit and understanding, as well as their youthful eyes and appealing faces. Let them become interested in other people's problems—a woman of 40 or over can so easily do this without offense.

"And let them remembers, above all, that romance will surely come to them, if they restimulate themselves, in their own homes, too. Husbands and the younger set will take notice and admire. How short is the road between admiration and adoration!"

Mlle. Rubinstein is the sister and coworker of Helena Rubinstein, internationally famous beauty scientist.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WINTER VACATIONS PAY.

THERE are three groups of well people who can be expected to profit from winter vacations. The first group are the old people, beginning at about age 65. This includes both the senile and the senescent—those who have accomplished old age and those who are on the way.

Osler has called pneumonia the old man's friend, because this disease eases so many old people out of life. Most of us are willing to avoid that kind of friend or to at least postpone an introduction as long as possible.

Elderly persons need more sunlight and open air life in winter and early spring than they can get in comfort in cold climates. Housing in artificially heated homes is the cause of several kinds of discomfort to which their age makes them subject. As a matter of safety against pneumonia and bronchitis, and also as a matter of comfort, they benefit from winter vacations.

Growing children need sunlight and open air as a protection against rickets. When they spend the cold season in a climate where they can spend much time outdoors they are able to acquire an education with fewer disease hazards and with less danger of crooked legs and pigeon breast than is the case when they sip from the fountain of learning in schoolrooms that must be artificially heated, aired and lighted. Probably some school child will rise to inquire how we figure any schooling to be a vacation.

Grown people in full vigor need winter vacations of another kind. They profit most from outings taken in the snow and on the ice. In Europe winter sports in the Alps are justly renowned. In this country winter sports in certain parts of Canada, around Saranac, and in a few other regions attract large numbers of people. Those who go to Colorado, Wisconsin and the New England mountains to participate in winter sports should equal the number who go to these resort States for a summer vacation.

There is a place in the scheme of things for week-end winter vacations corresponding to the summer week-end trips.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

SOME BEAUTY "DOS AND DON'TS"

DON'T expect over-night miracles from any cosmetic. DO follow label instructions and adopt a simple night and morning schedule. Then never skip and you WILL be rewarded.

Do use ice on face and neck every day (it's a simple beauty aid, but most beneficial). Wrap ice in gauze or soft cloth and pass over the skin quickly or better still, use it over a light application of nourishing cream, as the movie star do. But, DON'T hold the ice in any one spot for any length of time, particularly if your skin is thin or if you have a tendency to broken veins.

DON'T adopt fantastic effects for your eyebrows. They detract from your natural loveliness and often create unfavorable comment. DO keep any straggly hairs plucked from above or below the naturally arched line. And if the brows are very heavy have an expert arch them first.

DON'T buy every new beauty aid you hear about or see advertised. DO adopt the three essentials—cleansing cream, skin tonic and nourishing cream. Used regularly, these three will cleanse, tone and nourish and that's all the normal skin requires.

DON'T neglect your hands and nails. They're an important part of the beauty ensemble, and careless manicures can do much harm to the cuticle and corners. DO use an emory board, cuticle oil and orange wood stick every day, yourself. It takes but a minute or two—the cuticle will be even and the nails always well-shaped and corners smooth.

DON'T nibble between meals, take second or third helpings nor be tempted by midnight foragings from the refrigerator if you must watch added poundage. Do eat at regular hours and plan well-balanced menus which include plenty of the health-giving vitamins found in fresh fruits, green vegetables and raw salads.

DON'T start or end your day without a few breathing and stretching exercises. DO start practicing a few simple exercises today. Soon you'll be doing them easily and you'll find it an enjoyable habit.

DON'T crab, lose your temper, bemoan your fate or worry if you wish to be beautiful. DO smile, cheerfully help others and be thankful for your many blessings—your kindness and inner radiance will be reflected in your eyes, expression and personality.

BUCKY HARRIS SHOWED GRIT IN DEBUT HERE IN 1919

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

OF all the tinkering, tampering and puttering about with the football rules, the recent week-end produced the greatest activity in that line and probably the greatest single absurdity in the proposal to give a fifth down to teams in possession of the ball within the 20-yard lines.

Even though dignified by the sponsorship of the Eastern Association of Football Officials, the five-down proposal has so little to recommend it and so much to condemn it that it becomes a source of wonder as to how they ever arrived at any such solution to the problem of balancing the attack with the defense.

This department asked the opinion of Jim Pixlee, coach of the successful George Washington eleven, who found so many flaws that I hastened to explain that I was an innocent bystander in the matter lest he connect me with the diabolical plot to throw football out of kilter, as he said it would.

Very Amusing, Says Pixlee.

The rule proposed would provide five downs instead of the four allowed whenever the team in possession was within its own 20-yard line, or within the 20-yard line of the enemy's goal, on the theory that it would open up the attack deep in its own territory instead of punting, and that it would offset the advantage of a massed defense deep in the enemy territory when it becomes increasingly harder to gain ground.

"It's all very amusing," said Pixlee. "Ever since Gene Sarazen advocated the eight-inch cup, I'm a little bit suspicious of these new rules. They all look like publicity stunts.

"Why, the darn rule defeats its own purpose. They want to give a team five downs to put the enemy in danger, and then when they lose the ball the opposition is given five downs to get itself out of danger, thereby losing for the first team all the advantages that it might have gained by five downs. I can't see the point at all.

Four Downs Declared Plenty.

"Four downs is plenty," continued Pixlee. "You don't have to punt necessarily from within your own 20-yard line. The team that is willing to gamble and has a bit of intestinal fortitude can do plenty with the ball within its own 20-yard line. George Washington has been beaten by a pass thrown on the fourth down with the opposition on its own 45-yard line. That's the kind of stuff that wins football games if you're willing to gamble.

"Rule-making of the past few years has all been done by the conservative coaches of the East, who want to take the gamble out of football and guarantee that the team doped before the game to win will win. That's why they called fumbled balls dead balls, and penalized unsuccessful forward passing in a series of downs."

Defense More Highly Developed.

"It's true, the offense has not been as highly developed as the defense, due to the fact that coaches spend 70 per cent of their time on the defense. That's usually because coaches would rather accept a tie than gamble on a victory or defeat. Defeat may mean the coach's job and that's where the defense comes in.

"If they want to balance the offense with the defense, the best way that I can think of is to limit the line play near the goal line. Within the 10 or 20 yard line now, there is no limit to the number of men the defense can put on the line and many frequently have eight or nine players there. If they would limit the line to six or seven men within the 10-yard line, that would open the game up and really offset the advantage of the defense. But five downs wouldn't."

Thanks, Mr. Pixlee.

Dues May Be Reduced At Columbia Country

Reduction of dues will be the keynote of a special meeting of members of the Columbia Country Club tonight at the clubhouse, it was announced last night.

The meeting will start at 8 o'clock and will be presided over by L. P. McLachlin, president. The entire membership and board have been asked to attend.

There has been a feeling around District golf clubs for some time that a slash in the annual dues would be a tremendous help in retaining old members and encouraging prospective ones to join. A number of clubs, in conducting membership drives, already have reduced fees.

Shift to Right Welcomed By Goslin

Escapes Sun Field and Expects Move to Aid Hitting.

Cleveland Prices Back to Preboom Level, Not Really Cut.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

"GOOSE" GOSLIN will probably wear a big smile when he first hies himself to right field for the Nationals during the coming season, for his memory no doubt will hark back a dozen or so years when he performed so atrociously in this position that the fans and some of his mates referred to him as the "roller skating fly-chaser," due to the manner in which he skated and skidded while chasing drives hit into his sector.

The "Wild Goose of the Potomac," after discovering that he was no pitcher, was playing left field for Columbia when the Nats purchased him in the fall of 1921. Not wanting to inflict the tough sun-field on the rookie, Skipper George McBride tried him in right.

He finished out the year in that position and started 1922 there, but he simply could not seem to be able to figure out the angles, and finally Clyde Milan, new leader, gave up and reported to President Clark Griffith that Goslin would not do.

Griffith Ordered Practice.

"Send him in to see me," said the Nat owner, and he then told Goslin that, if he could play the sun field in left he would give him a trial there. "Get yourself some glasses," said Griffith, "and practice. When you're satisfied that you can dodge the sun and still make the catches let me know."

To make a long story short, within two weeks Goslin was playing left for the Washington club and he has capably filled that berth ever since, both here and in St. Louis.

Goslin has played enough baseball since so that the shift planned for him next season should not affect him, especially in view of the fact that he will have about six weeks of preliminary practice down South. As a matter of fact, "the Goose" welcomes the shift.

"It ought to make me a better hitter," he told the writer when he was here recently to sign his contract. "Sometimes, when I led off an inning at bat, I'd almost be blinded from the effects of the sun while fielding. Working against the sun is bound to have done my eyes no good, and I'm mighty glad to get out of it."

Nats to Benefit From Shift.

If things work out this way, the Nats see a double benefit in the proposed shift—not only better hitting from Goslin but also the benefit of his whip, which is expected to throw out many an alien baserunner either trying to score from second or attempting the trek from first to third on singles into the right field garden.

"Remember the story in the Bible of the prodigal son?" asked President Griffith last night, "where the good little boy who stays home got no credit for it, but where they killed the fatted calf when the bad one returned after going out and having a big time. Well, that reminds me of the case of the Cleveland ball club and the Nats. We're the good little boy in this case that gets no credit.

"I see everyone is getting all excited because the Indians have reduced prices. The fact is that they raised them during the prosperous war days and are just now dropping from these inflated prices—down to where the Washington Club is now and always has been.

"When every other club in the league except one raised the admission fee, we stood pat and even absorbed some of the war tax levied at the time. We still have the same price scale and even plan to absorb some of the admission tax, but no one seems to get excited over that.

Washington Club Gives Break.

"Washington fans probably don't realize it, but we are the only club which consistently has given them a break."

And when one considers that Philadelphia asked and got $2.25 for box-seats last season, Cleveland charged $1.85, while several of the other clubs levied $1.50, it would seem that the Nats do deserve a little credit.

Many inquiries have been made as to what the Nats will do in case First-baseman Joe Kuhel is put out of action. Both Heinie Manush and Fred Schulte have been mentioned as understudies, but the president states that the latter will get the call. "But," he added, "This Bruce Connatser is a pretty far doorway guardian. He's on 24-hour option with Chattanooga and we could get him back here in two days if Kuhel's lay-off threatened to be a long one."

The Washington Club's headquarters will be moved to the Biloxi training base this week, as Griffith, accompanied by his wife and Miss Mildred Robertson, his secretary, plan to leave for the Mississippi stronghold on Wednesday.

Corbett's Condition Reported Unchanged

New York, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—The condition of Jim Corbett, bedfast at his home in Bayside for five days, remained unchanged today. Friends said the former heavyweight champion, who is suffering from a heart ailment, had passed a good night and was resting comfortably.

Of Baseball, Pegler Says Game Is Best Dollar's Worth in Sports.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

I WONDER if this is a private argument which has been going on about the troubles of baseball, because, if any one can get in, I would like to strut my own idea that the baseball magnates produce the best dollar's worth of sporting entertainment that is to be had in the United States. Not only is the price of admission cheaper, but the conditions of weather usually are much more pleasant at baseball than at football, and the game itself makes much better looking-at, and what do you think of that?

In fact, I am beginning to admit privately that football, with its jerky play, its constant time out and its mysterious confusion of rules, which even the players themselves do not always fully understand, would be the great American sore if it were not for the luscious little coeds, the rackety rax and the preposterous young clowns who lead the bands.

Disorderliness Tolerated At Football.

Moreover—and the right-minded element will not agree to this at all—disorderly conditions are commonly tolerated at football games, even at the best schools, where young and old soaks go lurching through the crowds, falling all over the ladies and making all-around pests of themselves, which would bring the ushers and the house cops running with a battle cry of "Yo-heave!" if they ever began to occur at a modern major league or high minor league ball park.

And further, moreover, this football of ours, which is spoken of so piously as the character-builder and all that, is, next to amateur tennis, the most hypocritical game we have on the American register, a psalm-singing, eye-rolling, sanctimonious imposter, which pretends to the character of a religion, almost, but is actually a large and important department of the show business and the worst man-killer of all of our games, except hunting. Well, if it's not the worst man-killer, spare one, then name me a worse one, and name me a sport that collects more money.

Baseball's Inspiration Claim Scoffed At.

I do not think that baseball, or any other sport, is better off for being held up as an inspiration to the young or a lesson in the game of life. That idea came into circulation along with the nonsense about the ideals of the real estate pluggers who called themselves "associations" and "organizations" and who were supposed to be in business solely for the altruistic purpose of elevating the American home and improving the breed of citizen. But there was much less hard drinking and social hell-raising in the scroll-saw houses of the previous generation than in the stucco and fake-timber imitations with four baths and two-car garages of the last decade.

Baseball is a pretty good sort of game, but some of the orneriest tricks you ever did see are common occurrences among the amateur teams, especially in the little towns where they recon to mob the visiting athletes and break up the contest and steal their equipment if it looks as though they can't beat them playing ball. In the professional leagues, sharp practice is the ideal, and I would not recommend the game as a lesson in the game of life unless you want your little boy to grow up to be a counsellor at law, for which it would provide fine ethical preparation. You will find good ball clubs in Sing Sing and the makings of good teams in all other institutions of similar chtaracter, and you might as well say the grand old game of craps or poker is an inspiration to the young or fraught with ennobling lessons in the way to live.

But, just as a game to be played or gazed upon for fun and for better or

Heart Attack Fatal To Leonard Collins

Deceased Prominent in Sports Newspaper Circles Here.

Leonard W. (Len) Collins, well known in District sports circles for many years, died suddenly at his home, 415 Twelfth street northeast, yesterday morning as the result of a heart attack. Mr. Collins, 45 years of age, had been ill for several days. Saturday night he attended the Campbell Bowling Sweepstakes, and, as a result, suffered the relapse yesterday which proved fatal. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Ella Collins. He was born in Indiana, but came to Washington when a small boy.

Mr. Collins was at different times a sports writer on practically all of the local newspapers, specializing in bowling and racing. He edited the Duck-pin Blue Book and the American Turf Blue Book, both of these publications being recognized as "official" in these sports.

Funeral services will be conducted at Gawler's undertaking establishment Tuesday at 2 o'clock, to be followed by Masonic services at the grave in Congressional Cemetery.

Mr. Collins was as popular as he was prominent, and his loss will be keenly felt in District newspaper and athletic circles.

G.U. and G.W. In Contests Tonight

Hilltop Five Tackles West Virginia in League Game.

Colonials to Entertain Rider; Other Frays This Week.

BURIED deep in the doldrums for over a month, Georgetown's team will attempt to get back on its feet tonight when it clashes with a rugged band of mountaineers from West Virginia University at Tech High School's gymnasium in a scheduled Inter-collegiate Basket Ball League game.

Rushing along on the momentum of a 76-21 victory over Elon College last Saturday, George Washington's sure-handed tossers will seek their ninth victory of the season in their battle with the powerful Rider College team of Trenton, N. J., on the H street floor.

Both contests will start at 8 o'clock and are calculated to attract large crowds. The Hoyas and Colonials are the only two local District quints who will see action tonight.

Georgetown will probably open hostilities with Hargaden and Crowley at the forward posts, Connors at center, and Carolan and Murphy at guard.

Hilltoppers Play Mount St. Mary's.

Georgetown's only other game of the week is with Mount St. Mary's at Tech Wednesday.

Rider College, undefeated in college circles this season, and apparently as strong as last year, when it nosed out the Colonials, 40 to 39, in Trenton, figures to offer the proteges of Coaches Pixlee and O'Leary far more opposition than was put forth by Elon. The Trenton outfit has beaten such teams as St. Francis, of Brooklyn, and Geneva, both among the best in the East, and Catholic University, 42 to 32. St. Francis defeated Villanova, which recently snapped the winning streak of St. John's, of Brooklyn, a team that whipped G. W. here, 36 to 35, in an extra-period game.

George Washington rounds out the week with a game on Thursday with Wake Forest at G. W., and one with Long Island University.

American University plays twice this week, meeting Elon at home Tuesday and St. John's at Annapolis Saturday. Catholic University faces Wake Forest at C. U. Wednesday and Loyola in Baltimore Saturday. Maryland encounters Washington College on Wednesday, Virginia on Thursday and Washington and Lee Saturday, all at Ritchie Stadium. Gallaudet's lone game of the week is with Western Maryland at Tech Saturday.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 5.—The Occidental Bowling Team, of Washington, conquered the Worthmore All-Stars, of Baltimore, 2,950 to 2,947, in the home-and-home series held at the Recreation last night.

Lotta Janowitz, winner of the Dixie Sweepstakes in Washington last week, was the only local bowler able to win. She showed fine form in the late matches to trounce Lorraine Guill, ranking No. 1 woman player of the United States, 554 to 539, in the women's singles.

The local men in the singles and doubles matches met defeat. Ray Von Dreele, of Baltimore, fell before Astor Clark in the singles, 611 to 563, while the local doubles team of Andy Zeller and Ray Barnes were forced to bow before Walter Megaw and Ollie Pacini, 1,257 to 1,186.

Top-Notchers In Portner Bouts

All-Star Cast to Support Dougan vs. Burl Bout.

Jacobs-De Beve Promise Thriller in Six-Round Clash.

By DAVE HERMAN.

THE wheels of the fistic industry, rolling into action two favorites, Leroy Dougan and Eddie Burl, in the main eight-round tussle tomorrow night at Portner's Arena, will deposit into the ring of the reformed Alexandria brewery an all-star supporting cast, from which ranks any one of six boxers could be employed as headline material.

There is Stumpy Jacobs, rising young lightweight from Hopewell's "wonder city" in Virginia, who will stake his winning streak in a six-round skirmish against Arthur De Beve, crouching, frog-faced veteran from dear old France. Jacobs needs no introduction hereabouts. Two of his fights at Portner's resulted in victories, the victims being Bobby Burns and Al Gordon. He was made to look bad in his third scrap, losing to Jack Portney in an eight-rounder.

Six in a Row for Jacobs.

As every one knows, some left-handers make good fighters look like punks. Jacobs gave birth to a winning streak about five months ago and he has chalked up six in a row. He fought at the Cambria Club in Philadelphia New Year's Day and beat a good man. Last week he decisioned Roy Kid Manley, left-handed swinger from Arkansas, at Portsmouth—and Manley is no set-up for any one. The "Keed" holds a verdict over De Beve.

DeBeve has been parking in Washington for about six years. He won from Tony Stetz recently on a foul and proved himself a crafty puncher in whipping Freddy Haverlak and LeRoy Zinkham. The Frenchman always gets a big hand from the local boys and girls.

From the Eastern Shore comes the challenge of Bob Cosden, a hard-hitting lightweight who will collide with Roddy Davis, Eastern High School pride, in the six-round semiwindup.

Davis is a main go fighter, but is perfecty content when they drop him down a peg in the program. Davis had eleven straight victories until Joe Britton, Baltimore veteran, flattened him in the first round a couple of weeks ago. Davis came back in his fight with Angelo Meolo and scored a clean-cut verdict. Cosden, incidentally, holds a victory over Meolo, too.

Buddy Grimes, Norfolk featherweight, whose only appearance last winter at Portner's resulted in a defeat at the hands of Harry Groves, will clash with Doug Sweatnam, 17-year-old Eastern High athlete, in a six-rounder.

Opening the program, Henry Irving, Washington's own "Popeye," and Joe Brennan, Norfolk middleweight, are slated to put on a toe-to-toe encounter. Brennan packs a terrific punch, his press agents say. Irving has been the possessor of an enviable knockout record.

Indications are that Dougan and Burl will wage another of those rip-snorting fights that two fast and ambitious bantamweights of this type are capable of doing.

First Main Bout for Dougan.

Dougan, a native of Blytheville, Ark., is fighting in his first main go. In four straight matches he earned a draw and three decisions. Burl won from Jimmy Mack, who is now his stablemate in Philadelphia, and later lost to Benny Schwartz, of Baltimore.

Burl has been trained for the match by Johnny Loftus, one-time conditioner for Stanley Ketchell.

Dougan yesterday completed his training at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. His manager, Ralph Murdock, is greatly pleased with his work. The little speed merchant dusted off two sparrers, Sammy Romano and Eddie Compton, of Philadelphia, and strutted around the canvas with a new green robe, the gift of an admirer, Palmer Sowers. He will wear this tomorrow night—and is not superstitious about wearing it.

The tickets are on sale at Rinaldi's.

LOTT VICTIM OF SUTTER IN 4 SETS

Steady Tennis Brings Victory; Chicagoan Wins in Doubles.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 5 (U.P.).—Clifford Sutter, New Orleans tennis star, today defeated George Lott, Chicago, 6—4, 7—5, 3—6, 6—2 to win the Pan-American tennis singles championship on the Flamingo courts here.

Lott got a partial revenge, however, when he paired with Richard Covington, Asheville, to upset Sutter and Bryan Grant, Atlanta, 6—4, 6—3 for the doubles title. The match was cut to two sets by darkness.

Lott and Covington previously had won an unfinished doubles semifinal match, beating S. Jarvis Adams, New York, and Gustavo Voliner, Cuba, 6—4, 4—6, 3—6, 6—4, 10—8.

Sutter won the singles title through superior steadiness. Lott had his best chance to hold a lead in the second set, but he slipped after taking a 5—3 lead. Sutter took five placements in the final set to win easily, whereas Lott was wild during the entire afternoon.

The Chicagoan lost 68 points on netted balls to 40 for Sutter.

All Soccer Games Postponed a Week

Schedule Is Carried Over Until Next Sunday; Grays Near Title.

Snow, which obliterated all traces of the chalk marks so necessary to a playing field, forced a postponement of all games in the Capital City Soccer League yesterday. Although the mercury slumped until it hovered well below the freezing mark, all teams were willing, even eager, to play, but it was impossible. The three games scheduled have been moved back a week and will be played Sunday.

Boasting a record of nine consecutive victories and no defeats nor ties, Columbia Heights Grays have only to win from Marlboro to clinch the championship. Marlboro's chances of copping the pennant are rather remote, as it must win from the Grays and the remainder of its games, while the Grays must lose two more contests.

Two former teammates, now stars of their respective teams, who looked forward to yesterday's game, Fred Watson, goalie for the Grays, and Gump Bailey, Marlboro center forward, will match skill Sunday. Watson has been scored on only seven times this season, while Bailey is second highest scorer in the league, having booted twelve goals in his last two games.

Bill Lewis, of the Columbia Heights Blacks, leads the loop in point-making with 27 for 10 games.

SCHAAF AND CARNERA IN FEATURE

Heavies Top National Battles Scheduled for This Week.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Ernie Schaaf, of Boston, and Primo Carnera, of Italy, whose combined weight is close to 500 pounds, collide in Madison Square Garden Friday night in the feature match of the national boxing program this week.

The winner, says Promoter Jimmy Johnston, will be given a title match with Champion Jack Sharkey, outdoors, in June.

Schaaf, in view of his recent comeback feats, probably will rule a slight favorite over the vast Venetian. After his disastrous slump of last summer, Schaaf has come back strong, knocking out Unknown Winston and Stanley Poreda, each in six rounds. Both Poreda and Winston had scored decision victories over the Boston biond in 1932.

Levinsky, Christner Late Victims.

Carnera's most recent victories have been scored over King Levinsky, of Chicago, and K. O. Christner, of Akron, Ohio. He will scale about 260 pounds, outweighing Schaaf by some 50 pounds. Schaaf, however, should benefit by the long route, 15 rounds. He is one of the most rugged of the heavyweights, while Carnera, at times, has shown a tendency to tire in the latter rounds.

At New Orleans Monday night, Eddie Flynn, Olympic welterweight champion, makes his third professional start against Buster Mallini, of Mississippi. Flynn won his first two pro matches by knockouts, beating Harry Kid Wallace, of Philadelphia, and Tommy Jones, of Atlanta.

Red Barry to Get Real Test Tonight

D. C. Heavy Meets Birkie, Husky German, in New York Feature.

Washington's rising young heavyweight, Donald ("Red") Barry, who has his lamps cast on a future bout with Ernie Schaaf, will attempt to hurtle over another obstacle in his path tonight at the St. Nicholas Arena, in New York, when he battles Han Birkie, husky German heavyweight, in the feature ten-round fight.

Barry, ranked twenty-first in a recent issue of The Ring, has been cutting a wide swath in the heavyweight ranks, his most recent triumph being over Isadora Gastanaga, Spanish heavyweight champion, at Holyoke, Mass. The Washington boy is being brought along under the tutorship of Mushky Jackson, popular metropolitan trainer, with headquarters at Stillman's Gym. Jackson considers Barry a worthy contender for championship honors.

A.Z.A. QUINTET TRIUMPHS.

A. Z. A. defeated Beta Phi, 26 to 24, last night at the Jewish Community Center, Ableman featuring with 8 points.

U. S. HOCKEYISTS WIN.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 5 (A. P.).—The Boston Rangers, touring American hockey team, defeated the lawn tennis club Praha for the second time today, 1 to 0. The Rangers won by the same score yesterday.

Post Contest Recalls Old Lineup

Harris Played With Broken Finger Unknown to Griffith.

Rice, Milan, Foster Hit Above .300, But Club Finishes 7th.

THE postwar days of 1919 saw sports bounce back onto the front pages with a new-found importance in the Nation's proceedings.

Out in Toledo, where a scorching July sun had transformed Tex Rickard's hastily constructed pine-board stadium into a boiling cauldron, Jack Dempsey pounded Jess Willard to a pulp in three rounds to effect the transfer of the world heavyweight title in the shortest heavy title bout of all time.

A few days after that incident, Duffy Lewis, who was hitting the ball for New York, knocked Washington into seventh place in the American League, where the Nats finished the season.

Tris Speaker became manager of the Cleveland Indians, the first playing manager since Fielder Jones of the Hitless Wonders White Sox in 1906.

The Cincinnati Reds beat the Chicago White Sox to "win" the world series in five out of eight games, with the public innocent of the fact that certain White Sox "threw" the series and brought shame to all baseball.

Little Bill Johnston scored his last victory over Big Bill Tilden in the national clay courts championship.

But there was one development of 1919 that didn't hit the front pages—Bucky Harris' debut with the Washington Ball Club.

Bought From Buffalo For $4,000.

The youth who, five years later, led Washington to its first pennant and first world series triumph, represented a $4,000 purchase from Buffalo in August, 1919, and his brief career with the Nats that season in which he played in only eight games was an accurate index to the gameness and courage that helped him to show the Nats the way to their conquests of 1924 and 1925.

Manager Griffith inserted Harris in the line-up immediately and after watching his new second baseman perform in three games was congratulating himself on his new addition to the club. But on the fourth day he virtually booted Harris out of the line-up.

Unbeknown to Griffith, Harris had carried a broken finger on his throwing hand into the line-up and had successfully concealed his injury from the Nats' owner until the whispering around the clubhouse reached Grif-

TROUBLEMAKER CARRIES U. S. HOPES IN GRAND NATIONAL

Gelding Bred, Owned in America

Mrs. Somerville Developed Jumper in Virginia.

Owner Going Abroad to See Race; Noel Laing to Ride.

Special to The Washington Post.

WINCHESTER, Va., Feb. 5.—Hopes of followers of racing between the flags in the United States of some day seeing an American-bred and American-owned horse head the field at the finish in a Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, England, are running high. From across the seas come fine reports concerning the manner in which Troublemaker, only American-bred thoroughbred scheduled to start in the turf classic March 24, is taking to his work in preparation for the world's toughest race, horsemen stated here today.

Troublemaker is owned by Mrs. Thomas H. Somerville, the former Marion DuPont, who maintains an elaborate racing and breeding establishment in Orange County, Virginia.

Laing, Gentleman Rider, With Horse.

The big gelding, son of Berilldon and Busy Body, went across in the late autumn to be made ready for his bid for international fame. With him went Noel Laing, young gentleman rider of Rappahannock County, who for the past several years has had the leg on Somerville mounts in American point-to-points, and who is to ride Troublemaker at Aintree.

Troublemaker may not succeed where Billy Barton and Sea Soldier failed, but American racegoers who have seen him race over timber, tall and stout, are certain he will nobly carry the silks of Mrs. Somerville in the big race.

Troublemaker is a product of the Old Dominion, having been reared amongst the red hills of Albemarle and within the shadow of Monticello.

He was bred by W. H. (Uncle Billy) Garth, widely known Virginia turfman, at his Ingleside racing establishment near Charlottesville. After being tried out on the flat and found wanting, he passed into the hands of the late Randolph Ortman, master of Blue Ridge Farms, near Greenwood, in Albemarle County. Mr. Ortman, wealthy and fond of horses, hunted Troublemaker for several seasons.

Horse Won First Time Over Jumps.

Jack Carpenter, gentleman rider, employed by Ortman, persuaded the latter to race the gelding over timber. Troublemaker made his first appearance under silks in winning a Deep Run Hunt Cup at Richmond.

From Mr. Ortman, Troublemaker went to Mrs. Somerville, at a price said to have been a record at that time. Mrs. Somerville bided her time with the big fellow, starting him in a few races and taking care not to overtax him. Last year, Troublemaker came out to beat the best leapers in America and to be proclaimed the top steeplechaser in the land.

Mrs. Somerville will shortly sail for England, to be present when the pride of her establishment goes forth to do battle with the best the world has to offer in the world's greatest jumping race.

Youthful Cue Experts in Action at Boys Club

Andy Dargan (left), young billiard star, and Sun Lew, Chinese-American youth, shown just before the start of the third block of their 500-point pocket billiards match at the Washington Boys Club. The pair clash in the final block tonight. Dargan is leading by a score of 255 to 180.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

MIAMI, FEBRUARY 4.

DEAR AL:

It took 11 pounds in favor of Curacao to end Gold Step's winning streak yesterday . . . but it was a horse race all the way . . . Curley Head won at the Fairgrounds at 18-1 . . . and every one with a wave (natural or otherwise) believes he or she missed a hunch bet . . . The caliber of riders here is so good that the horses actually are deciding the races . . . Dartle made good yesterday . . . I told you this was a clever youngster . . . Kincsen is oiling up for the $50,000 Cuban Handicap . . . closed like an express train in yesterday's Miami Beach . . . what a race Kincsen put on that day at Bowie . . . the veteran appears to be in excellent shape . . . Danny Meade may ride the mare for the big dough next month . . . Mike likes Mueller . . . goes at Havana tomorrow. BILL.

FIRST RACE—ONDOTT has run evenly the last two times out and appears ready to leave the maiden ranks. UPPERCUT is speedy, but has been tiring in the stretch and the added furlong tomorrow should not suit his purposes. BANNACH LATH has shown fair form.

SECOND RACE—COLLATERAL exhibited a neat effort the last time coming with a rush at the end. That effort repeated here would take all the competition out of the race. Workman probably will ride. JUSTA HYMAN was in trouble the other day and may be second in this. WISE WAYS is better than that last.

THIRD RACE—I'm going to try to make KATE win this. Johnny Gilbert will ride and the price will be there. This one was considered mighty promising when she beat maidens in Maryland last fall and has worked well here. That last might have been the tonic needed. RALLY ROUND can beat SKY HAVEN despite the race of last week.

FOURTH RACE—SCOUT MASTER ran into trouble in his race at this course and failed to show a true race. However, the son of Campfire is in excellent shape. SEMAPHORE is on edge and that last probably will draw him most of the play. I PASS for the show end.

FIFTH RACE—POLAR BRUSH packed a lot of speed in that previous outing and Bellizzi seemed to have another notch he might have to let out had it been necessary to clinch the verdict. I expect to see this one upset the dope. HELIOS, the logical favorite, for the place ahead of SUPERCHARGE.

SIXTH RACE—SHIVA and Buddy Hanford appear to have the edge over this group of rather evenly matched horses. COME ON has not been running up to form and is the sleeper. LIVE ONE may account for the show.

SEVENTH RACE—TOTEM finds everything right here for a victory. CAMP BOSS gets in lighter than usual and Gilbert may shake him up. WORTHINGTON might have brushed up a bit in that last.

Tomorrow night Delaware & Hudson will face the Fraters at Alexandria at 8:30. Boys Club and the Central "Y" meet at the Boys Club at 8:30 in the lone game Wednesday night. On Thursday, Saranacs and Griffith Consumers clash at Hyattsville at 7:30, and D. & H. and Company F battle on the same court at 8:30.

ACE MATMEN TO MEET IN SEMIFINAL

Judson to Face Humberto in Bout at Auditorium.

PRINCIPALS who go in for clean, hard rassling will fill the semi-final spot at Washington Auditorium Thursday night when Frank Judson, hero of valiant stands against Jim McMillan, Ray Steele and Champion Jim Londos, mixes with Jacques Humberto, Mexican star. They are routed 45 minutes.

Humberto, newly installed as a favorite in preliminary stands here, gets his first real chance against Judson.

Humberto Fast Heading Toward Top.

Invading the East only recently, Mexico's championship claimant has surprised everywhere with his showmanship and general knowledge of the grapple game. To such an extent, in fact, that he already has been established as a headliner in several cities.

Judson, a pronounced favorite locally since outpointing Rudy Dusek earlier in the winter, again appears in the process of a build-up. Having tossed big Jim Clinstock recently, the former Harvard mat director will demand a top spot in the event he gets by Humberto.

Headlining to a finish will be Jim McMillan and Paul Jones, both top flighters. Thirty-minute supplementaries schedule Ernie Dusek vs. Joe Stecher, Rudy Dusek vs. Frank Bomesh, and Dr. Ralph Wilson vs. Lou Plummer.

Battery E Five Wins In Artillery League

Coming from behind, after lagging behind in the first half, which ended with its opponent in possession of a 13-8 advantage, Battery E came from behind to win a 26-16 victory over Battery B and continue its winning streak in the second round of the 260th Coast Artillery loop.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S nomination of Prof. John Christian Jensen, director of Station WCAJ, Nebraska Wesleyan University, Lincoln, Nebr., to succeed Gen. Charles McK. Saltzman and Judge E. O. Sykes, of Mississippi, for reappointment on the Radio Commission, is looked upon as a gesture, since there appears to be no chance of any of President Hoover's nominees being confirmed by the Senate.

The nominations, therefore, do not carry the weight they would ordinarily, especially since a bill is pending in Congress, said to have the approval of President-elect Roosevelt, providing for a communications commission which would have supervision of telephone, telegraph and cable, as well as radio.

So even if Prof. Jensen were confirmed, being a Republican, his term of service probably would be short, if the new communication commission is created as Representative Sam Rayburn, of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, declares it will be.

Of more significance is the reappointment of Judge Sykes, a Democrat, who has the backing of Senator Pat Harrison and the Mississippi delegation. If Judge Sykes is not confirmed by the Senate this session, undoubtedly the confirmation will be forthcoming during the next session. If the commission goes ahead on the old basis, he will, without question, be its chairman.

IF the new communications comis created, Judge Sykes, it is believed, may be seriously considered by President Roosevelt as one of its members. Judge Sykes has had long experience, being the only member of the original Radio Commission appointed by President Coolidge, and because of the excellent record he made representing this country at the international radio conference at Madrid.

Although the impression is that Prof. Jensen can not be confirmed, nevertheless his nomination by the President has centered considerable attention on the Nebraska professor. Through his work at Station WCAJ he is known to the broadcasters. He is a member of the Institute of Radio Engineers and has written several papers on subjects of atmospheric electricity, and the relation of weather to radio reception.

Prof. Jensen is a member of the Institute of Radio Engineers. His interest in radio began during the early years of the World War. In 1918 he became chief radio instructor of the war training unit at the University of Nebraska.

CEREMONIES in the joint session of Congress called for noon today, to hold memorial services for the late President Calvin Coolidge, will be heard over both WRC and WJSV.

The memorial program will start at 11:45 a. m. over WRC, with music by the United States Marine Band. At noon the joint session will be called to order by Vice President-elect Garner, as Speaker of the House. The chaplain of the House of Representatives will then deliver the invocation, to be followed by an address by Chief Justice Arthur Prentice Rugg, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

The memorial service will close with music by the Marine Band and the chorus of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Lawrence Tibbett will sing "Life Is a Dream," from "The Prodigal," the talking picture in which he starred, as one of his solos on the Voice of Firestone program over WRC, at 8:30 p. m. Tibbett also will offer Dvorak's "Songs my Mother Taught Me," "I Love Life" by Mana Zucca, and in conclusion the dramatic "Credo," from Verdi's "Othello" in which the vain and cynical Iago expresses his villainous creed.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the Roosevelt inaugural committee, will explain the elaborate plans he and his committee are making in a talk in the National Radio Forum.

The Pickens Sisters and the Rollickers Quartet will be heard with Paul Whiteman and his orchestra during the Buick program over WRC at 9:30 p. m. As a musical feature, Whiteman will present a medley of Jerome Kern hit songs, including "Kalua," "Who," "Old Man River," "Make Believe," and "I've Told Every Little Star," from his latest musical show, "Music In the Air." Jack Fulton, tenor, will be heard in a number of vocal interludes.

Three Japanese students will discuss American-Japanese relations and present-day Japan in the program of the National Student Federation (WJSV, 2 p. m.) today.

The radio telephone brought the ocean closer to shore when Capt. Doucette of the trawler Gertrude M. Fauci rescued Capt. Newton Wilkie and his crew from the schooner Dawn Wilkie on the high seas and later the same morning was being interviewed over the telephone by a reporter on land. Shortly before that the rescued skipper himself had telephoned his wife, waiting in an agony of suspense in her home in St. John, New Brunswick, and she heard his own voice telling her that he and his crew had been saved.

That the Dawn Wilkie was foundering had become known several days earlier. When newspapers that morning still reported her fate as uncertain, Mrs. Wilkie was on the verge of breaking down. Then the telephone rang. "It's Newt speaking," said her husband's voice. "We're all safe. There's nothing to worry about." Capt. Doucette had picked them up 60 miles off Cape Sable and the Dawn Wilkie was sinking when she was sighted. The captain took them off and, when Capt. Wilkie learned he could notify his wife by telephone, he did so at once.

When a reporter heard of the rescue he stepped into one of the telephone booths in his office and put in a call in the usual way for Capt. Doucette on the Gertrude M. Fauci. In a few moments he had the captain on his line and conducted his interview as though telephoning a man in his office.

The Fauci is one of several trawlers which have recently been equipped with the new Western Electric marine radiophone systems that enable them to talk with any other telephones on land. Capt. Newton was some 200 miles out of Boston when he called his wife and his voice flashed to the station there and then went by land lines to his home in St. John.

PLANS are complete for a rebroadcast in the United States, if atmospheric conditions permit, of a conversation between Pope Pius XI and Senatore Guglielmo Marconi, on Saturday, February 11. Both networks will carry this program inaugurating a new radio system in the Vatican City * * * Tom Waring, pianist and tenor soloist, will rejoin his brother's band—Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians—for their first series of radio programs which will be inaugurated on Wednesday night under the sponsorship of Old Gold * * * "Vas You Dere, Sharlie," inspired by Baron Munchausen, is a new number to be played during the Trew Motor program over WRC at 7:30 o'clock tonight * * * Leon Brusiloff's Orchestra, accompanied by Elsie Craft, will be on WRC at 6:45 o'clock * * * A new program featuring Vincent Lopez, sponsored by the Real Silk Hosiery Mills, was heard over the WJZ-WBAL network last night. ## Bob White
The Old Philosopher SAYS:

Question—I am a young man 18 years of age. I left school in my first year of high. Things have been pretty tough with me and I find it hard to make enough to keep body and soul together. What I want to know, is it worth while?

Answer—Plenty. Young man, you are suffering from what so many of us suffer—a poor philosophy of life. I admit times have been hard, the battle for life has been fierce, and so many times we feel that we want to let go.

So many things are worth while. The belief in God as one who guides and directs the pilgrimages of man, even through troubled waters. No seas are mountainous enough to submerge us. This I say is worth while.

The belief in life—the beauty of it all, the opportunity it offers, the romance of it, the victory of it—all these things are worth while.

The experience of love—the passionate kiss of the youth for the maiden; the love of a man for his wife, the devoted love of a mother for her child. I say these things are worth while. * * * A job, and to do it well. The opportunity for service, not for gold or gain, but for the sheer joy of serving. These are worth while. The laugh of a child, the song in the throat of a bird, the hush of evening, the blush of dawn, the quiet of an afternoon. All these are worth while.

Young man, wake up to the beauty of life and enjoy it.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL, at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

MUSIC AUDITORIUM DEDICATION IS HELD

Guarnerius Quartet Features Pleasing Program at Cyngham Hall.

Soul-stirring music of Haydn and Franck, played by the noted Guarnerius String Quartet, of Philadelphia, filled Cyngham Hall, the new music auditorium of the Washington College of Music, yesterday afternoon at dedication exercises honoring the memory of Dr. Hugh Rowland Roberts, the president of the college, who died recently.

The large attendance of distinguished musicians, teachers and students filled the new auditorium and other rooms of the school, and the reverent silence that music arouses in the hearts of music lovers pervaded the rooms in which the concert was heard.

The quartet was composed of Emanuel Zetlin, the first violinist; David Madison, the second violinist; Samuel Lifschey, at the viola, and Willen Van Den Burgn, violoncello.

The dedicatory concert opened with interludium in modo antico by Glazounoff. This was followed by compositions from Haydn—quartet in C major; Vivace, Adagio, Menuetto Adagio-Presto-Adagio. The concluding renditions were compositions of Franck—quartet in D major, Poco Lento-Allegro-Poco Lento; Scherzo (vivace) Larghetto and finale (allegro molto).

The name Cyngham Hall was selected by Dr. Roberts. The word, taken from Dr. Roberts' native Welsh, means "harmonious consonnance" or "the making of music together." As fitting as this interpretation are the concluding lines of Abt Voiger, by Browning, the poem selected to adorn the program:

But God has a few of us to whom he whispers in the ear;
The rest may reason and welcome;
'tis we musicians know.

Cited Policeman Admits Killing Wife and Sister

Detroit, Feb. 5 (A.P.).—Breaking an 18-hour silence, Patrolman Webster Clark tonight was quoted by officers as confessing the slaying of his wife and sister-in-law last night and blaming it on a domestic quarrel caused by "too many in-laws."

The 35-year-old patrolman, whose 10-year record with the Detroit police department includes 22 citations for bravery, was arrested last midnight after his wife, Bertha, 34, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Louise Kinder, 32, had been found shot to death in the Clark home. Clark, officers said, made an attempt to take his own life with a knife.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

PATIENCE that marks the method of training all animals was demonstrated by Karl Reich, German canary breeder, who spent fifteen years training sixteen canaries to sing together harmoniously in a four-part chorus.

Candidates for Herr Reich's canary chorus were taken from 350 birds. Selecting the sixteen best qualified to begin training, Reich segregated them from all others so that none could hear the song of any other bird while in training.

The unique chorus was composed of four parts, ranging from soprano and first and second tenor to bass. At the end of a decade and a half Reich's patient efforts were rewarded in the form of what is probably the most outstanding of all bird-training accomplishments.

Strange as it seems, canaries were named after dogs. The birds were named for the Canary Islands, where they were found in the wild state by explorers. The islands were named by the Spanish, who called them Canaria, after the Latin word "canis," meaning dog. A large, fierce breed of wild dogs, now extinct, was found on the islands in 1630 by the Spanish explorers.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

IF HOLMES HAD KNOWN ABOUT TECHNOCRACY.

LITTLE I ask, my wants are few;
I only ask relief from care—
The guaranty whatev'er I do
Will bring me comforts, and to spare—
A world which always will display
Its boons the scientific way!

Plain food is quite enough for me—
Three meals a day will stay my fears (Distributed officially through Scientists and engineers)—
I love the happy feeling that
I'm cared for by some Technocrat.

I never care for gold or land,
For profits or for worldly gain;
Just give me independence and Security from snow and rain——
I only ask a system which Will make me carefree as the rich!

Money's a useless, futile thing—
Ten thousand dollar bills are vile;
I merely seek to have my fling
And live in fashion and in style
On "ergs" distributed as pay
For what I do four hours a day!

Four days a week are all I ask
In which to work for any one;
That's long enough for any task,
And leaves a man some time for fun—
I'd be quite satisfied, egad!
With twenty times what father had!

Jewels are baubles, and I swear
Such luxuries amount to naught;
The only gems for which I care
Are pearls of scientific thought—
Suffice it when they measure me
For permanent prosperity!

Of bank books none do I desire—
No savings do I wish or need;
Toss all my check books in the fire—
Away with profits and with greed!
I only ask a perfect plan
To make me an untroubled man!

Wealth's wasteful tricks I'll not abet;
The present system makes me laugh—
I merely ask all I can get Through gauge and rule, through chart and graph—
When everything is measured right
I'll take my share through effort slight.

Thus humble let me live and die.
Nor long for Midas' golden touch;
A loyal Technocrat am I
Who doesn't seek soft living MUCH—
And may my flow of energy
Get everything it can for ME!

PUTTING THE FINGER ON IT.

The trouble with America just now, thinks Elmer Twitchell, is that it is too full of big barter and erg men.

Germany has perfected a train that will go 100 miles an hour. But there will probably always be a passenger to ask the conductor, "How late are we?"

'MARRIED-WORKER' CLAUSE REPEAL IS URGED BY WOMEN

Tends to Prevent Marriages Between U. S. Employes, Meeting Is Told.

Supported by prominent speakers and an enthusiastic audience of more than 200 persons, the Government Workers Council of the National Woman's Party furthered its intensive fight for women's right to paid employment at a mass meeting yesterday in the Masonic Temple auditorium.

The speakers vehemently attacked that part of the economy act which provides that married couples employed in Government service shall be dismissed ahead of all others and that future employment preference shall be given to persons other than those married to Government employes.

Objections Are Cited.

Mrs. Edwina Avery, chairman of the Government Workers Council and chairman of the meeting, charged that the principal objections to the act, are that it "operates to prevent marriage between Government employes in the future" and that it "is operating to force women out of paid employment."

Representative Louis Ludlow, of Indiana, told the audience he introduced the equal rights amendment in the present Congress and added: "If it is your wish I will reintroduce the equal rights amendment in the next Congress."

Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, said investigation shows that married women work for the same reasons as married men—economic necessity.

Miss Younger Raps Act.

Miss Maud Younger, legislative chairman of the National Women's Party, declared the act is based on principles of 60 years ago, and that the fight is being waged against women's employment "on economic grounds."

Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, who was to have made an address on women's right to paid employment, sent a telegram saying he could not attend because of illness.

At the close of the meeting resolutions were adopted asking repeal of the "married workers" clause in the economy act.

Charged With Banging Her Head Against Steam Pipe in Hotel.

Miss Bennett was in a hysterical condition at Emergency Hospital, where she was taken for possible injuries suffered when Inman is declared to have banged her head against a steam pipe.

Screams of Miss Bennett were heard by James Norris, occupant of an adjoining apartment. Norris forced his way into the room and held Inman until police arrived. The young woman was transferred to the hospital in the Fire Department ambulance after first-aid treatment.

JESUS' FORGIVENESS STRESSED BY CLERIC

His Dying Prayer Is Pointed Out by Universalist Church Pastor.

"Forgiveness is at the very heart of the religion of Jesus," said the Rev. Fredric W. Perkins, preaching yesterday in the Universalist National Memorial Church on "Ought We to Forgive?"

The pastor took his text from the eighteenth chapter of St. Matthew, the twenty-first and twenty-second verses, "Lord, how oft shall my brethren sin against me and I forgive him? Until seven times? Jesus saith unto him, 'Not until seven times, but until seventy times seven.'"

Dr. Perkins said in part:

"In my reading I came across this statement, 'Any doctrine of the forgiveness of sin is in contravention of the whole majesty of the law by which the universe moves.'

Consequences Meritable.

"Such an idea is widely current. It is one of the results of the scientific habit of mind which recognizes the inexorable tie binding cause and effect together.

"If men sin, the consequences are inherent and inevitable. As Emerson said, 'We are punished not for our sins but by them.' Given the sin, the harvest follows. Given the electric tension, even God can not cancel the thunderbolt. Nature, we are told, never forgives.

"Jesus taught us to pray, 'Forgive us our trespasses.' His dying prayer was for forgiveness of those who had nailed him to the cross. And when we encounter a really forgiving soul we instinctively pay homage to life at its noblest, no matter what science may say or how much a cynical world may scorn.

"Was Jesus' prayer on the cross a weak sentimentalism? Must we cease to be realists and shut our eyes to the stern fact of moral retribution when we respond to his example?

Not Remission of Penalty.

"The problem arises because of a wrong notion of what forgiveness is. It is not a remission of penalty. It is refusal to add to that a vindictive desire to inflict injury because of a desire to get even. Forgiveness is simply love that will not turn to hate when it is wronged. It is not a new and special attitude called out when one suffers wrong. It is the old attitude of good will which the sting of personal wrong can not change. Forgiveness does not cancel retribution, but it does bar out retaliation and revenge.

"Is it true that nature does not forgive? On the contrary, nature is always forgiving. Suppose that the Washington Monument had been built with the center of gravity outside its base. The flouted law of gravitation would have brought the structure down in ruin. Suppose, inconceivable as it is that a second and a third time the foolish attempt had been made. As often would the inevitable retribution have followed. But the next time the law is obeyed and the tower stands. The very forces that were the builder's foe become his friend. Nature does not say, I will topple the monument over a few times more in order to punish you for your previous disobedience. Nature forgives, because she does not cherish resentments and bear grudges. In that analogy we get a glimpse of what divine and human forgivenesses are."

Loss of $1,000 Bracelet In Night Club Reported

Surgical Instruments Worth $370 Pilfered

Surgical instruments, valued at $370, were reported stolen yesterday from the automobile of Dr. Robert M. Balton.

TRAFFIC TOLL

TO DATE.

Many motorists seem to have implicit faith in their horns as a means of clearing congested traffic and removing slow-moving vehicles from their path. Many run around with hands continually on the horn button ready to blow at the slightest excuse.

A horn is a very good thing to have, but it is a nuisance when used by some impatient driver trying to toot his way through traffic.

By all means use your car's horn when it is necessary, but don't overwork it.

The accident figures are:

| | 1932 | 1933 |
|---|---|---|

"Be Careful!"

New Police Radio Studio Step Nearer Curb on Crime

Only Matter of Seconds Now to Dispatch Crime Calls.

By CLYDE H. DUBOSE.

With installation of the new broadcasting room for radio station WPDW of the Metropolitan Police Department, scheduled for the first of this week, and the simultaneous release of figures computed for radio car calls in 1932, the department last night had chalked up another step toward the goal of crime prevention efficiency.

"The new room," it was explained by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, "will help to reduce the time required in answering calls. As the call comes into the police operator it will be written. The operator will hand the slip through a window to the dispatcher. All will be only a matter of seconds."

With fourteen scout cars and eight headquarters cruisers on the street in 1932, a total of 526 cars reached the scene of disturbance before the radio stopped broadcasting. Although this is a comparatively small percentage, it is pointed out that it only took one minute for a total of 5,697 cars to reach the scene. The longest it ever took a scout car to reach the object of a call was 15 minutes. But this happened only twice.

To the morbid, or otherwise misdirected, sense of humor of certain residents of the District has been credited a total of 1,088 false reports out of the grand total of 40,783 calls for the year. This, of course, is in addition to the 390 runs made for the benefit of certain "maniacs" whose greatest aim in life, apparently, is the turning in of false fire alarms. The cars responded to the call of 1,761 fire boxes during the year.

An interview with a few radio car policemen is convincing, even to the most skeptical, that one outstanding improvement has been made—the improvement in favor of the policemen's own comfort. Riding through night and day of last winter's snow and ice in the old type open roadster has been termed "a dog's life" in comparison with the comfort of transportation in the new light blue, closed cars.

Lounging in the tonneau of one of these modern "luxuries," a most interesting cross section of life is obtained as the car drifts slowly about the streets, day after day and night after night; listening to the periodic rumble of the little loudspeaker over head that in a second can send the car speeding across the city.

"Scout car 91, auto accident, Eleventh and B streets northeast—B, as in Boston"—3,636 such calls were answered during the year. "The ambulance has gone to——," 2,350 times the cars answered this call, and 1,113 the little loudspeaker droned out "Rescue Squad call at such and such."

Summing it all up for the most interesting reports, the cars answered 1,166 calls for "police wanted," and 137 for "police need help." "Trouble" calls were sent out 3,798 times and 1,040 times the officers were sent to apprehend a "drunk." Brake tests for autos that had been in an accident required 2,109 calls.

While only 12 persons were murdered, according to the little loud speaker, 165 were being beaten, 449 were cut or stabbed, 409 were in the wrong house, 217 were injurd, 4 were kidnaped, 22 killed, 609 lying in the street, 323 sick, 344 with a dangerous weapon, 30 were stealing and 12 were overboard. The radio also registered 77 mad dogs and 17 lost children.

Although housebreakings are numerous in the city, only 313 were reported on the radio during 1932. Holdups brought 528 calls. Fights brought the largest number of calls, the number being 7,131. The smallest number was one, that being a call to "weight a truck." The street caved in three times, 20 people committed suicide and 34 riots, 423 shootings and 179 robberies occurred, according to the radio. Forty-two people tried to commit suicide but failed.

Burglar alarms registered 192, breaking in a house, 708; calling for police, 117, and disorders, 560. Fifty-six persons were found dead, 105 were assaulted, 84 were operating autos while drunk, 131 were insane, and 8 were shooting fireworks. All this resulted in 4,631 arrests.

As an example of radio car efficiency, Maj. Brown told a Post reporter, a Negro man was caught in Baltimore, where there is no police radio, while attempting to break into a house. It was discovered he was from Washington. When asked why he didn't do his "work" at home, replied, "Boss, yuh jest simply can't beat them radio cars."

Man Eludes Death In Wild River Ride

Alexandrian's Small Boat Driven Helpless Before Icy Blast.

Driven before a wintry blast of wind sweeping down the Potomac River last night, a small rowboat, manned by John E. Driver, of Alexandria, Va., disappeared in the darkness and for more than two hours river rescue agencies frantically hunted for traces of the missing craft.

Shortly before 7 p. m. harbor police received a message reporting the boat adrift off the lighthouse at Jones Point. Patrol cruisers and private craft immediately launched a search. Driver, it was reported, had only one oar and was unable to straighten his course.

About 9 o'clock the police radio boat, Charles E. Evans, located a dredge anchored eight miles down the river. Investigation disclosed Driver safely aboard, suffering from exposure, but little the worse for his experience. He told police the high wind caught his boat and he could do nothing, but sit helplessly and await developments. He said he was attempting to cross the river to New Alexandria.

PRINCETON TEACHER FILLS PULPIT HERE

Dr. Zwemer Calls Dread of Light Cause of Spiritual Blindness Today.

Describing "photophobia" as "a dread or intolerance of light which in man is not a symptom but a disease," Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer, professor of the history of religion and Christian missions at Princeton Theological Seminary, preached yesterday at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church.

"It is a parable of the spiritual blindness of man through the ages," he said. "Though contrary to the laws of nature, and the law of light and beauty, photophobia is, nevertheless, found in some forms of plant life," Dr. Zwemer went on.

Jesus' Enemies of Today.

Dr. Zwemer discussed three elements of photophobia, the spiritual fact, the cause and the cure. He said in part:

"The fact of spiritual blindness, fear and dread is all around. It was so in Jesus' day. He was hated without a cause. He was rejected and despised of men for nineteen centuries. The tragedy of history is moving because it was the rejection of the greatest character of history, Jesus Christ. And why was He rejected? Not because of extraordinary sins, but because of a selfish determination to uphold their own precarious position by the people of His day. The same classes of people are with us today—the self-righteous, those who love mammon and the cynics. The enemies of Jesus sometimes sit in the pews of the churches. How often have you and I betrayed the Son of Man like Judas?

Mental, Not Moral, Cause.

"What is the cause of this photophobia? It is not mental, but moral. Through the ages men have turned from the light because their deeds were ugly. This is an indication of the approach of atrophy of the optical nerve, and can only bring spiritual blindness. However, those who turn toward the light always receive the welcome of God.

"The cure of photophobia is in your heart and mind. 'He that doeth the truth cometh to the light that his works may be made manifest.' With the light of God manifested in the Christ of history, the Word of God and the Church, we can walk in the light as He is in the light, have fellowship with Him and be cleansed of sin. Any one whose practices are corrupt will not come out into the light. When the actions of a person are true and sincere, he comes out into the light. Are you following the gleam or going back into the gloom."

Legion to Award Medals In School Essay Test

The District Board of Education has given permission for the award of two American Legion medals to seventh grade pupils of Washington. A medal will be given to the boy and another to the girl writing the best essays on George Washington.

All essays must be turned in at the superintendent's office at Franklin School by Wednesday. The medals will be awarded February 15 by U. S. S. Jacob Jones Post, No. 2, American Legion, which is made up of former yeomanettes.

Window Broken, Clothes Stolen.

Wolf Sheurr, proprietor of a clothing store at 913 Fourth street northwest, yesterday reported to police that clothing valued at $25 was stolen from a show window some time Saturday night. The plate glass was smashed, he said.

MALL WAGE CUTTING STRUGGLE TO REACH DECISION THIS WEEK

Organized Labor and Builders Rally Their Forces for Showdown.

The threatened wage cut, with its portent of interference with the Mall construction program, is expected to produce action in earnest today with carpenters making their first offensive move against slashes scheduled to become effective Thursday.

Tomorrow organized labor and contractors engaged in the Federal projects will gather to rally their forces in a drive against and for wage reductions in several other trades.

In the background of these activities, lurks the possibility of a general strike on the Mall—though both sides are known to be working against such an eventuality.

Agenda of all three events presage the first major wage controversy to beset the big Federal projects—the progress of which has already been marked by a spectacular fire and the deaths of several workmen.

Appeal to Heath Today.

Carpenters—who have been notified of a $3 per day cut, beginning Thursday—are expected to take their troubles before Ferry K. Heath, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who is the Federal contracting officer, this morning.

Under the Bacon-Davis law, which regulates wages paid on Federal construction work, the contracting officer must first attempt to iron out disputes. If he is unable to do so, then, under the law, the Secretary of Labor must be the final arbiter.

Tonight the District Carpenters' Council will meet to discuss the wage situation. Possibility of disciplinary action against carpenters who have worked for an $8-a-day wage—$3 below the $11 claimed as the prevailing wage by carpenters—is expected.

The Carpenters' Council is also expected to consider ways and means of combating the cut ordered by contractors in the event a favorable decision to the carpenters is not obtained today from Maj. Heath.

Contrasting Contentions.

Tomorrow contractors and subcontractors will hold a session to consider slicing wage scales paid to a number of other trades engaged in the Mall activity.

Tomorrow night the Washington Building Trades Council holds its regular meeting and labor leaders have indicated strenuous opposition will be expressed by this group to any wage reductions.

The contractors claim a greater spread of building activity could be maintained by a wage cut and argue further that labor should be willing to take a cut inasmuch as Federal salaried employes are being forced to do so.

Organized labor retaliates with the statement that contractors are attempting to force down wages for their own benefit, with a resultant lowering of standards of living here. Further, say labor leaders, the contractors would not be able, under rulings of the Comptroller General to return to the Treasury—as they have claimed they propose—money saved by a wage cut.

Man Is Ruled Suicide After Gas Kills Him

Found unconscious from the effects of illuminating gas at his room at 1104 Eighteenth street northwest yesterday, Wilbur Kubitz, 45, later died and was declared a suicide by Coroner A. Magruder Macdonald after an investigation.

Kubitz was slumped near a small gas range, both burners of which were open. A number of racing slips and tip sheets were found in the room, leading to a belief that the man was depressed because of gambling losses.

Limited Disarmament Denounced as Failure

Because they aim to limit, not eliminate, warfare, international disarmament conferences have so far failed, according to a joint message sent to President Hoover yesterday by the Pennsylvania Committee for Total Disarmament; The Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, United States Section; the National Fellowship of Reconciliation; the Women's Peace Society and the Women's Peace Union of New York.

The message called on the President to instruct the American delegates to the Geneva Conference to propose a multilateral treaty for immediate total disarmament.

TEACHERS COLLEGE TODAY RETURNS TO REPAIRED BUILDING

Enrollment Doubled Since Transfer Necessitated by Cracks in Walls.

Students of Wilson Teachers College, Eleventh and Harvard streets northwest, will return there today for the opening of the new semester after occupying the Columbia School, Seventh and O streets northwest, for a year because of the defective condition of the regular building. Transfer of fixtures was completed yesterday.

Wilson Teachers College was condemned as unsafe with dramatic suddenness on the morning of February 10, 1932, after cracks were discovered in the front wall. An emergency meeting of the Board of Education was called on that day and the student body was ordered transferred to the Columbia School.

Enrollment Doubles.

At first, many of the students expressed themselves as dissatisfied with their new abode and it looked for a while as if some of the prospective school teachers were in danger of being denied a continuation of their education. However, matters were smoothed over and, instead of being reduced, the enrollment has doubled in the past year, Dr. Edgar C. Higbie, president of the Teachers College, said yesterday.

With the exception of a few minor details the college building has been repaired and approved as safe by District building inspectors. In addition to rehabilitating the defective wall, other portions of the school have been repaired and the building has been redecorated.

Only Three Days Lost.

The teacher students have lost only three days because of the transfer, Dr. Higbie said, and this can easily be made up. There are 760 students in the school, 435 of whom are resident pupils. The first four-year class will be graduated this June. Hitherto, Wilson Teachers College was on a normal school basis with a three-year degree. It has since been elevated to a regular college standard.

The Columbia School, where the students have been carrying on their work, was the original Central High School. It is now the Abbott Vocational School. The vocational school did not take up the entire building, which made it possible for teachers college to be transferred there. Vacancy of the building by the teacher students will enable the vocational school to expand.

Noisy Pup

Whoopie Likes Her Howls, but City Bedlam Gets Her Goat.

If you hear a dog whooping things up near your window some morning at 3 a. m. call Maj. Thomas I. Steere at the Army and Navy Club and he'll pay for the information.

"Whoopie," a pedigreed German shepherd police dog, is missing. "Whoopie" was named because of her habit of gathering all the dogs in the vicinity and leading a howling jamboree.

But she is a country-bred dog. Her master brought her to the city yesterday. The automobiles evidently frightened her and she set out for the wide-open spaces.
